Senior Joe Hayworth displays his frustration with junior Dan Clark's Trivial Pursuit question that has left seniors Jolene Callen and Steve Cox dazed bewildered and confused.

Walking out of the hot sticky hallways crowded by the largest student population ever, you breathed in the brisk and refreshing autumn air. Someone asked you if you were going to the football game an enthusiastic reply started the plans rolling for the evening's big social event. This was just one page of the exciting, never-ending East Side Story.

Many events created more chapters in this school's history.

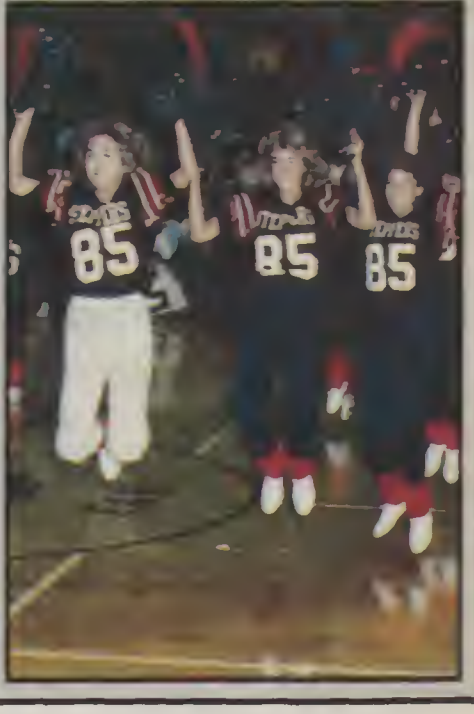
You enthusiastically read about senior Ric Gorgas' clever discovery about the ITED (Iowa Test of Educational Development) in the Des Moines Register. He discovered a definite "pattern" in the answers.

"Mrs. Barbara Prior wanted our scores to look good in the newspaper and we took the front page!" commented Becky Bolton, senior.

The very next week you filed into the gym through metal detectors and rows of secret-service men. In the brightly lit gymnasium you cheered to Vice-President Bush's comment, "We did to Mondale in the debate on Sunday what Iowa did to Michigan Saturday," after the University of Iowa's victory over Michigan the previous Saturday.

Winter came with its car-stalling winds and ice-covered grounds. But the heat and excitement of the compacted crowd at the first boys' basketball game and their first victory made it worth braving the cold.

You attended mixers and dances and discovered teenage social life. With these new discoveries, you helped write, produce and act out the "East Side Story."



Jumping for joy at the completion of a routine they worked so hard to perfect, senior Steppers Anne Tesdall, Kim Ward and Heidi Raymond smile with confidence and poise.

Senior Bryan Cook is still hungry after his finishing his lunch and helps Mark Cory, senior, with his.

Senior Ursula Johnson balances delicately on 14 other flagpoles and yet manages a look of pride.

A favorite pastime for sophomore Debbie Davis is talking on the phone while studying.

Stocking up for a night of "teepeeing" are seniors Judy Rupprecht, Andi Huebner and Angie Hodges.

Senior Chris Rogness knows that the most time-consuming activity of students is homework.

The story didn't end at the 2:40 bell. It went behind the scenes into the nightlife of the cast—the students. Whether they were bogged down with homework, watching an occasional Friday night game or painting the town Scarlet red, they continued the East Side Story outside the walls of Dear East High.

Everyone felt the pain of homework. It could have been because: one stayed up all night and didn't finish, forgot it at home or didn't even start it. During the third and fourth quarters, homework got harder because the very contagious disease "Senioritis" struck the Senior Class and spread to some underclassmen.

The Friday night games helped relieve some of the symptoms of senioritis as people streamed back to school in their finest red clothes to watch the event.

After the game, most went out to celebrate—to the pizza parlors, mixers and movies. They painted the town Scarlet Red with East jackets. People were active "behind the scenes".

Spirited students make Homecoming a success!

Homecoming...It was more than just a dance, game or activity. It was a tradition,and a week-long series of events.

The thought of Homecoming, for some, began as soon as school opened. The sweaty feeling in the hands when a boy asked a girl to the dance was felt by seniors and freshmen alike. Age and maturity did not seem to change this feeling.

Homecoming Week began with Twin Day. Many friends got together and dressed up in the same clothes.

Tuesday was Cowboy and Indian Day. Many Scarlets got out their cowboy boots, guns, hats and loincloths for this day.

On Wednesday, East was invaded by the "Revenge of the Nerds." Many people got on their best polka-dotted shirts, high-water pants and bow ties.

Thursday, we showed how neat and nice we could look. This was Dress-up Day, and many young ladies and young men, dressed in their finest, showed up on this day.

Finally, Homecoming Week ended with Spirit Day. Everyone put on his red and black clothes to provide spirit for the school.

Two new events were added to Homecoming Week. The bonfire was complemented by a street dance, and a car parade before the game had about 40 to 50 cars participating.

Student Government was again in charge of the Homecoming activities.

Kim Heck, president of Student Government, thought that Homecoming Week went extremely well: "Even though we didn't win the game, a lot of enthusiasm was shown. I feel that the street dance and the car parade helped add even more to the spirit of Homecoming."

Justiniano, Seniors-frosh win

On a sunny October afternoon, two teams of awesomely ferocious, muscular females faced each other in the challenge of the Powder-Puff football game. The Powder-Puff game, a highly regarded tradition, was fought Wednesday, Oct. 3, among a bevy of delighted fans and agile male cheerleaders. The winners, the seniors, along with their freshman cohorts, wreaked havoc among members of the sophomore-junior team by beating them 21-0. The event was highlighted by the crowning of the Powder-Puff Prince, Sal Rincon, senior.

The assembly on Friday, Oct. 6, brought about a mixture of nervousness and anticipation as the Homecoming Court was presented for the first time. The freshman attendant was Susie Murrow, escorted by freshman Jim Grant; the sophomore attendant was Leslie McGee, escorted by sophomore Andy McHugh; the junior attendant was Tracie Moore, escorted by junior Mike Pavon. The Queen candidates were Angie Hodges, escorted by Lance Stephens, senior; Laura McMahon, escorted by Paul Mumma, senior; Natali Justiniano, escorted by Curt Heiting, junior; and Kim Heck, escorted by Jeff Stockbauer, senior, who was standing in for alumnus Scott Bryan.

Tension mounted as Mr. Walt Kennedy, Student Government advisor, ripped open the envelope annoucing Natali Justiniano as the 1984-5 Homecoming Queen. Her first royal walk was enhanced by the voices of seniors Kim Heck and Ted Garrington singing the theme song, "Heaven."

Taking place in the cafeteria Saturday, Oct. 6, the dance was a huge success. Couples had a good time. Many remarked that they really felt as if they were in "Heaven."

senior Pug Starcevich) and Cara Carter, senior, dispel this notion as they dance to the pulsating beats played at the Homecoming Dance on Oct. 6. "We had a great time at the dance! It's too bad it didn't last longer—I could have danced all night!" said Tami.

During her first royal walk, newly crowned Homecoming Queen Natali Justiniano pauses on the bridge to flash a happy smile.

Senior Lisa Hall and junior Kelly Heathcote look through a magazine about the musician Prince. Prince was very famous in 1984-5 because of the success of his movie, "Purple Rain."

Sophomore Angie Parker, junior Jennifer Nelson and sophomores Shelly Morris and Michelle Kelly play a game of cards. These cards are not your ordinary playing cards; they show Chippendales (male dancers).

Michael Jackson, Boy George, Prince very popular among student body

What is a fad? A fad is something that many people are interested in.

In 1984-5 many students were interested in music. People didn't just listen to the music; they also began to mimic their favorite stars and dress like them. The bizarre Boy George of the group Culture Club was a favorite. He was tabbed the "drag king or queen" because of his outrageous clothes and makeup. The most popular music star of 1984-5 had to be Michael Jackson. Michael broke on the scene with his solo album, "Thriller." It was the best-selling album ever. He not only sang the songs, but also acted them out into a musical video. The students could see these videos on MTV a 24-hour music video television channel. This channel was very popular among teenagers.

Back to Michael: He began to endorse many products. It seemed that everything in existence had Michael's name on it. Just when you thought the Michael Mania season was over, he and his brothers went out on a world tour. The ticket prices were terrible, but he still packed them in. Michael became the biggest star in the world. Girls would just die to hear his soft voice or get a glimpse of his sequined glove. Michael finally faded away after an eternity. There was another music star to take his place. His name was simply, Prince. Prince's fame was sparked by the release of his movie, "Purple Rain." The movie was called one of the best musicals, but the soundtrack was even better. Prince was sort of a "naughty" singer, but that didn't stop millions from loving him.

Another thing one always sees teens doing is eating. One could always find a large crowd at one of numerous fast-food restaurants. These restaurants included McDonald's, Hardee's, Burger King and Taco Bell.

Break dancing was also very popular. It is a form of dancing in which many athletic and somewhat unbelievable maneuvers are needed.

There were many other fads. Here are just a few: clothing, hair styles, earrings on young men and fast cars.

Whatever your style was in 1984-5, there was a fad for you.

Seniors Gary Cipale, Teresa Cardis and Steve Bollenbaugh enjoy a meal at McDonald's. McDonald's was one of many fast-food restaurants that were very popular with students.

Botanical Center offers romantic mood for 'When I'm With You'

Mistletoe hung in abundance among all the other beautifully blooming plants in the dimly lit Botanical Center. The day was Wednesday, Dec. 26. The occasion—12B Formal.

The 12B has been a tradition for many years. In the beginning, 12B was a form of prom for the seniors who were graduating in January. Today, however, the dance is open to everyone in the Junior and Senior Classes.

The dance was organized by the senior hostesses under the direction of Mrs. Gwen Copple, Spanish teacher. To be a hostess, one had to be a senior girl interested in making the dance a success. Each hostess bought two tickets: one for herself and her escort, the other to sell to another junior or senior girl. The tickets were $17.50 each.

The hostesses chose the theme, "When I'm With You," with pink, burgandy and grey as the dance's colors. Instead of hiring a live band, the hostesses contracted Rockin' Video Concepts to provide the music. Videos to popular rock songs were played, much to the approval of most dance-goers.

As a remembrance of the dance, the traditional wine goblets were presented to the hostesses. Couples could also have their pictures taken in a scenic background by Younkers Photography.

Macy Kristufek, senior hostess, felt the dance was quite successful. She said, "It was really exciting to see the dance go so well."

A romantic home-cooked meal satisfied the appetites of senior Jessica Gogerty, Neil Speer, senior Heidi Ricks, Jason Mosher and John Marshall.

EHS students display excitement at weekend games, Friday night dates

Practice and work were the main activites students participated in on week-nights. Practices for the many different sports, or the long part-time work hours students had, plus the ton of homework, cramped their social life on an average week-night. As the weekend started, though, at 2:40 on Friday, much excitement filled the halls. These might have been a few parts of conversation heard:

Carmelita Clark, sophomore: "Most of the time, I'll go see a movie with a friend, stay up all night Friday and all day Saturday, then die on Sunday."

Tyler Roorda, Matt Fisher, and Dave Harrison, juniors: "Most of the time we go in search of the perfect party, and when we are really bored, we put on our Rickenbacher hats and go 'shoot down' cars. When it is basketball season, though, we are in by 12.

Gayle Henderson, senior: "I usually get together with my friends and we either go to parties or a movie, or sometimes to the loop. We always manage to have a good time, even if it is just 'cause we're crazy."

Bundled up in red and black on a crisp, fall, Friday night, students displayed their spirit by going to the varsity football games , or in the loud, big gym, cheering on the basketball teams. Pizza, McDonald's and parties usually came after these games.

Remaining time in the weekend nightlife was for those special someones. Dates were big factors in many lives. A date could mean going to a movie, then out to eat or just sharing an evening together.

It used to be that students dreaded Sunday nights, having to do all of their homework at the last minute. But in 1984-5, many students couldn't wait until Sunday night rolled around. The Lucky Lady was a favorite spot for East students to meet teens from other schools, dance, watch big video screens and play pool and video games.

Nightlife was very exciting throughout the school year, whether it was playing a sport, working for extra dough or just being crazy; students enjoyed most of their nights.

Senior Denelle Poortinga and alumna Sherry Clausl thoroughly enjoy themselves in the castle on a fun-filled night at the Lucky Lady.

Spree made Valentine's affair

February is traditionally the month for lovers. This year was no exception as students attended the most romantic dance of the year — the Spinster Spree.

Sponsored by Pep "E" Club, the Spinster Spree was held Saturday, Feb. 9, at 8 p.m. in the cafeteria. The theme, "An Affair of the Heart" helped to set a romantic atmosphere amid multitudes of hearts and cupids. A marriage booth offered the opportunity for romantics to wed, while a jail was also available to anyone who wanted to end a romance.

Great music by Last Shades of Dawn enabled dance-goers to party out on the dance floor. Seniors Pug Starcevich and Jerry Stover joined the band in a few numbers on the drums, much to the approval of the dancers.

The highlight of the evening, however, took place when seniors Arla Green and Sal Rincon were presented as Queen and King, respectively. Raquel Larson and Jeff Stickle were the freshman representatives, Beth Raymond and Dereck Lewis were the sophomore representatives; Tracie Moore and Mike Pavon represented the juniors.

Pep "E" Club president Daleen Bullard said, "I felt Spree operated very smoothly. Since we needed a change from previous Sprees, this was more of an elaborate Valentine's Dance. It was beautiful and all who were present seemed to enjoy themselves."

Mrs. Shirley Blenderman, business teacher and Pep "E" Club adviser, agreed. She said, "Spree was a smashing success. All of the help that was given by Pep "E" Club members caused Spree to be one of the most memorable nights of the year."

Senior Jolene Callen said, "The dance was a lot of fun. It was great to see everyone having such a wonderful time. The pictures taken by Jolesch Photography will help to bring back memories of one exciting night in years to come."

Fall productions successful

There was a lot of talent at East High, and the Play Production class and Chamber Singers were living proof.

On Dec. 6, the Drama Department presented "Three-in-One," an exciting evening of three one-act plays.

The first play, "So the Jury was Hung," was a comedy about a single man who serves as foreman of a jury which includes 11 wacky women. Mr. Litel Quirt, or as the ladies called him, "Mr. Little Squirt," had to tolerate everything from a lovesick spinster to a couple of fist-fights over a simple sneeze.

"Beyond the Door" was a serious play about two old women and a criminal who broke into their house. The man was running from the police because he had murdered his wife. The two women offered to hide him if he would marry their mysterious younger sister, who was beyond the door.

"The Shock of his Life" was a comedy about a man who misinterpreted some phone messages and thought he was dying, while his wife and children thought he was going to be arrested for tax evasion. As the play moved along, things kept getting more complicated.

The Madrigal Dinner as presented by the Chamber Singers. Room 025 was transformed into an old English castle. The King, senior, Shawn McAnich, and the Queen, senior Julie Elder, greeted guests as they arrived. A huge dinner was presented in a "theater-in-the-round" style. Entertainment included a wild Punch-and-Judy show, a zany court jester and plenty of music and dancing. The audience was encouraged to participate in sing-alongs.

The Play Production class and the Chamber Singers worked very hard to make these productions a success and in the end, all the extra efforts paid off.

Sophomore Shelli Cave said, "We really worked hard and the audience seemed overwhelmed."

Sophomore Michelle Stephens said, "The Madrigal Dinner went off really well. The play was great, especially 'The Shock of His Life'."

Students were very satisfied with their performances, and the audience enjoyed every moment.

The vice-president of the United States, Mr. George Bush , speaks to East High students in mid-October.

Bush at East!

On Oct. 22, 1984, East High was honored by the visit of Vice-president George Bush. Kim Heck, Student Government president, had the privilege of introducing the vice-president. She had this to say about her experience: "I felt it was a great honor to introduce Vice-president Bush. It's an experience I'll never forget."

Senior Alycia Simpson had the honor of presenting the vice-president with an East High sweater and escorting him down to the stage floor to answer questions. She said, "When Mrs. Prior asked me to do this special job, I was really surprised and didn't believe it. When the day came, I was very nervous, but it turned out to be a relaxing experience. My visit with Vice-president Bush is a very memorable day I'll cherish forever."

Students were selected from the 1984 United Nations Tour group to ask the vice-president questions. Because of a lack of time, only 10 of the planned 23 questions were asked. Senior Kim Hosek had this to say about the question-and-answer period: "It was a wonderful experience for everyone who attended the assembly to see a prominent leader of our nation, even though some politically affiliated answers surfaced."

East was chosen because of a recommendation from Mr. John McClintock, former East Alumni Association president and active republican. He recommended East because he felt it had a good cross-section of kids.

All in all, the experience was a good one. Students and faculty alike had the opportunity to see a high security operation as well as see the vice-president of the United States, which is something most people will never do in a lifetime. It is an experience that all of East High won't forget for many years to come.

Nineteen-eighty four leaps into American newspaper headlines

The leap year, especially remembered because of George Orwell's book, "1984," and the re-election of Ronald Reagan as president, brought major headlines in American newspapers. New faces and old hit the press. Miss Liberty got a facelift, Miss America lost face and the young, confident smile of Mary Lou Retton crossed millions of American faces.

The Summer Olympics, although boycotted by the Soviet Union and other communist countries, proved very successful in Los Angeles. A record-breaking 83 gold, 61 silver and 30 bronze medals were won by the USA.

Reagan, too, had a record-breaking year, winning his re-election with the biggest electoral vote in the nation's history. But his opponent, Walter Mondale, also made history when he chose a woman, Geraldine Ferraro, as his running mate.

1984 was truly a record-breaking, history-making, world-shaking year to remember. As the headlines fade into yesteryear, we will not forget the faces that put them there.

"A special added touch!" This defines "special effects." Every extracurricular organization at East added an extraordinary effect to our "East Side Story" in 1984-5.

The many extra hours put in before, during and after school added dimension to student life at East. Each amplified the exciting and amazing roles which built our "story." Whether it was students learning leadership, participating in Student Government, responding at athletic events, presenting dramas, singing songs, shooting pictures or debating a social issue, the high level of involvement shown by the students was an important factor in making the "special effects" at East memorable.

This specific chapter for organizations could go on and on, because we had so many "effects" to be proud of. Being a part of any organization brought a bright, meaningful reward to all who were involved. So just as a special effect highlight a movie or play, East High organizations highlighted our school.

Amidst a flurry of hairspray and makeup, these quick-change artists, also known as Chamber Singers, hurry to get ready for the next scene in their performance for the Women's Club at Hoyt Sherman. An important part of spirit at school activities was performed by the Pep Band. The Pep Band played modern numbers, along with the school songs, to enable fans to get rhythmically involved. They were directed by Mr. Rex Cadwallader, instrumental music teacher.

Student Government is an important part of every high school. It is just that important at East High School.

Our Student Government was made up of four "senators" from each grade and four senior officers. These people made up the "Senate." They are elected each semester.

The main goal of the Student Government was to make school improvement and improve student involvement.

Student Government did many things to raise money and to involve the students. These activities included the football jamboree, Homecoming activities, mixers, a blood drive, and a chili supper.

The Student Government was sponsored by Mr. Walt Kennedy.

Brian James, senior senator and the official disc jockey at mixers said, "Student Government has been a very positive experience. It was a lot of fun and has made me a better person."

Quill Staff writes its way through another successful publishing year

Most students don't realize all of the hard work that goes into the production of a great yearbook, such as the 1985 East High Quill. The process actually began in the spring of 1984 as East's "best and brightest" chose the 1985 editors. Senior Jessica Gogerty was a unanimous decision for chief editor and seniors Linda Birkinbine and Steve Cox were chosen to be her assistants. A few select juniors were chosen by Mr. George Christian (adviser) to complete the staff.

All three editors attended yearbook camps during the summer to get new ideas for the 1985 book. One of these ideas is the "Mini-Mag" in the academics section.

The major production of the book began in mid-September. Layouts were drawn and "spreads" ("spread" is made up of the two opposing pages) were assigned.

The staff's first date with "Mr. Deadline" was Nov. 9, when the entire spread was due. It was met without too much difficulty, much to the relief of the staff and most of all, Mr. Christian.

Senior Jolene Callen had a different view about deadlines: "Working on the Quill was a unique experience. The best part of meeting Mr. Deadline was when Steve Clark hopped in his car and went on a doughnut run."

One area every Quill Staff member became an expert on was correct name spelling. Every member had his own list of the entire student body so that everyone's name would be spelled correctly.

Mr. Christian had this to say about the Quill: "We had an outstanding yearbook staff made up of East's best and brightest, who did their darnedest to produce the best yearbook possible." Junior Lori Rogerson liked being on the Quill Staff "because we all worked together, as a team, to produce a great yearbook!"

Senior Linda Birkinbine summed up every Quill Staff member's thoughts, "Deadlines! That was the one word the Quill Staff dreaded. When it came to the day before a deadline, panic set in. Actually, I'm just kidding. I've enjoyed working on the Quill Staff tremendously. I am also glad of the many close friendships I have made while sharing the satisfaction of producing a terrific book!"

Scroll given new look, updated

With editor Heidi Ricks, senior, leading the way, the 1984-85 Scroll Staff had another successful year.

It all started when an anxious group of juniors walked into room 656 for the very first time. The entire junior year was spent learning the basics of journalism. Then, in their senior year, the real work began.

The production of each Scroll began about a month in advance. First- and second-semester editor Heidi Ricks and assistants Chris Rogness and Natali Justiniano and second semester assistant, Heidi Raymond, then organized and planned the ideas. The managing editors then assigned the stories to the staff. The staff was given about a week to interview and write. Page editors were assigned and completed the page layouts. Pages were then pasted up and sent to the printer.

The Scroll had three special new features. It had a new nameplate to modernize and update the paper. Also, there was a new type of front-page layout. The third new feature was a special eight-page election issue.

A special job was given to Joleen Baker and Andi Huebner during the first semester and to Heidi Watermiller and Chris Collins second semester. They were the Lee Town News editors. They chose stories to submit to the Lee Town News.

Editor Heidi Ricks felt that the biggest, most hectic emergency was when the entire front page had to be rearranged. It was first redone for the ITED news, and then had to be totally redone for the visit of Vice-President Bush. Heidi said, "It's been a hectic job, but I've learned a lot and have had a good time working with my friends."

Senior Mindi Palmer frantically types a story so she can meet Mr. Deadline without any major difficulties.

Tami Clark and Julie Elder put their brains together to come up with a fantastic story for an issue of the Scroll. Both are seniors.

Seniors Aria Green and Audra Ginther are hard at work on a layout for a recent issue of the Scroll. Although it was a lot of hard work, they managed to have a good time while doing it. Scroll members often lent a helping hand to one another in order to finish on time.

Senior Todd Magnani catches the action at a girls' varsity basketball game. Watch out, Todd, don't get hit by a flying basketball! Also pictured are juniors Lori Anderson and sophomore Dawn Cameron.

Senior Chris Hartshorn looks at a strip of film. Chris and the others in the photography class did their own developing of the pictures they had to take. The photographers learned many things; among them were developing pictures.

A Flashy Year!

Lights! Camera! Action! Of course, the most important of these words was "camera" to the East High photographers. This elite group of highly professional individuals took part in many different activities this year. Whether they were shooting for the Quill or the Scroll, their talent shined through.

All through the year at basketball games, football games, plays or concerts, chances were that one of the 25 photographers would be nearby.

The photographers did many other things besides take pictures. After taking the pictures, they enlarged them and made adjustments to fill the needed space on publication layouts.

Photography seemed like a lot of fun, but it was also a tremendous amount of work. In the end the work usually paid off. As senior Andi Huebner said, "I like photojournalism because I think it's neat seeing the pictures I've taken printed in East High publications."

The photographers worked very closely with the East High Scroll and Quill Staffs. The writers would tell the photographers what kind of pictures they needed, and the photographers would try to fill those needs.

Junior Shawn Boers said, "Without the photographers there would not be a yearbook." The East High Scroll and Quill Staffs were very thankful to the photographers for all of their efforts. Linda Birkinbine, senior and assistant editor of the Quill, said, "The quality of our pictures this year was excellent. We owe the photographers a lot."

Many times photographers were sent to strange places to take pictures. Some of the time they were unable to take the needed pictures. When a crisis arose, Mr. John Lethcoe, photography instructor, was the first to help out. Mr. Lethcoe had a lot of pressure placed on him to make sure the needed pictures were taken. The Quill and Scroll Staffs sincerely appreciated Mr. Lethcoe's work.

Seniors were the first to say they were anxious for graduation, but the senior Scarlet photographers will always have memories captured on film to turn to and will remember that they were there. Senior Ty Slagle said, "In the past year photography has been one of my favorite classes, and in the future it will benefit me as a hobby."

Whether the photography student took the class as a hobby or for a future career, he will always remember capturing his high school years for all his peers to look back on and enjoy. Maybe some day we will all look back and see our humble photography class shooting the cover for "Time" magazine.

The photography staff's responsibility through the course of the year impressed many people. Senior Joe Hayworth said, "I feel that photographers are a very important part of any communications department. This is the case within the East High media. There were a few minor problems, but they were all overcome."

Senior Rod Sanders and junior Pam Wilson diligently work out a small problem. Rod was a senior photographer and Pam was a member of the Quill Staff. The Quill Staff and the photographers worked very closely together. The photographers enlarged pictures for the Quill Staff writers. With the help of both parties, the few minor problems were worked out.

"Got the shot, Natali?" This is senior Natali Justiniano setting up to take a picture on her tripod. One could often see Natali preparing to catch the action on film at many important school activities throughout the year. The photographers were assigned to take pictures at sporting events, school plays, musical events and at various other school events, such as dances. Thanks, photographers, for the great job! It was greatly appreciated.

Graphics print a great year

Printing the Scroll, PTSA Bulletins, programs, attendance cards, advertisements and tickets were some of the assignments for the students and seniors who took the graphics course.

"This course is for self-motivated people" commented Mr. Jeff Bock, graphics instructor. The only requirements were that one had to be a junior or a senior. It helped if the students had taken the Communications Media course in tenth grade.

Said Jay Elder, sophomore: "After being taught this course, I learned how to run everyting. I really enjoyed the course."

GRAPHICS: Linda Fisher, Jon Mireles, Arla Green, Missy King, Lori Erickson, Yvonne Van DeBoe, John Christiansen, Jay Elder, Terrell Wade, Todd Somers, Steve Roeder, Craig Hanner, Mr. Jeff Bock, Gary Cipale.

As a member of the graphics class, senior Lori Erickson works diligently on her assignment.

Kiwanians show determination

The Kiwanians of the Month group is for seniors from various schools. Nine seniors were chosen from different high schools to attend luncheons every Wednesday during their assigned month. They were accompanied by Mrs. Barbara Prior, principal. This gave the Kiwanians a chance to meet important leaders of Des Moines at the Kiwanis Club.

The qualifications Mrs. Prior based her selections on were student involvement, academics and leadership.

Heidi Watermiller, May co-Kiwanian, said, "I feel being chosen as co-Kiwanian for May is a great honor. I am thankful I was given the opportunity to represent East in this manner. This honor has helped make my senior year a memorable experience."

Barbara Worth, the other May co-Kiwanian, added, "Since only a few seniors receive this recognition, the honor means even more."

PTSA, Booster Club prove to be assets to East

The Booster Club proved to be a valuable asset to East. It was headed by President, Mr. Louie Plude; Vice-President, Mr. Dwight Roorda; Secretary, Mrs. Linda Vander-Linden; and Treasurer, Mr. David Wright.

The Booster Club sponsored many activities throughout the year, such as the fall football jamboree, Pancake Day and the AAU (Amateur Athletic Association) basketball tournaments. Spending over $12,000, they made many improvements on school property and donated a substantial amount of money to the National Honor Society.

The PTSA, Parent-Teacher-Student association, offered four $500 scholarships to deserving East seniors. At the end of the year, they presented a money gift to Principal Barbara Prior to use as she saw fit. They earned money from fund-raisers.

Mrs. Jan Sage, PTSA member, sells refreshments to a parent during Open House. The PTSA was in charge of the concession stands.

Lance Lethcoe and Lori Lethcoe, children of Mr. John Lethcoe, photography teacher, purchase pom-poms from Mr. Albert Tellis, a member of the Booster Club, at the East-Ames boys' basketball game. The Booster Club used some of the money earned to purchase new uniforms for the track team and new warmups for the tennis team. The Booster Club, along with Arrow Sign Company, sold plaques for the Red and Black Club at other basketball games.

Daleen Bullard, president, leads Pep Club through successful endeavors

Pep "E" Club had a successful year in pursuing their endeavors. Selling spirit links for the Homecoming assembly was one of their major activities. For another year, the seniors proved to be the winners. Thanksgiving baskets were delivered in November, and the annual Christmas party was held in the library during the first week of December. The Spree was sponsored by the Pep "E" Club in early February.

The board members were President Daleen Bullard, Vice-president Audra Ginther, Secretary Jolene Callen, and Treasurer Kelli Reese. All were seniors. The senior representatives were Heidi Watermiller, Sherry Smith, and Marjorie Glynn. Junior representatives were Tina Kohlbusch, Cathy Belcher, and Renee Smith. Sophomore representatives were Beth Raymond and Tricia Collins. Freshman representatives were Demetra Colton and LaVera Fleeks.

Cheerleaders promote spirit

Susie Murrow,freshman Cheerleader captain, demonstrates a perfect jump in the gymnasium.

Dedication and responsibility are very important qualities for a Cheerleader. She must be present and on time to the games, practices and meetings throughout the year. Also, she is responsible for remembering and learning the routines and cheers.

The Cheerleaders promoted the spirit and pride throughout the year at sporting events and assemblies. They were busy during the summer practicing three times a week, one to two hours a day, and attending summer camp. The varsity squad finished first place in a Cheerleading competition at the International Cheerleading Foundation Camp held at Lake Okoboji during the summer.

They did not have any fundraisers this year because of the excess money they had raised last year. With some of this money, the Cheerleaders bought new shoes and vests.

Their sponsor was Mr. Stan Thompson, social studies teacher.

Color Guard changes with times

The 1984-85 school year brought many changes for the Color Guard. These changes included new flags and rifles, using music for the first time at the State Contest and using lights in a routine at the Valentine's Day Assembly.

The marching season came in sparkling with new gold flags and rifles to intensify the James Bond theme. These new flags and rifles were used for competitions with the band and at the football halftime shows.

After six years of using drums at State Contest, a rule change made it necessary to use music. The new rule stated that there had to be at least four drill teams using live music to open a division for live music. Since there weren't the required four teams, the Color Guard had to enter the taped-music division, which brought on a new style of routine, different from those using drums.

Lights were a new idea picked up from other drill teams at State Contest. During the Valentine's Day Assembly the Color Guard illuminated the dark gym floor with brilliant red lights while forming a heart in the center of the floor.

Leadership was found among this year's officers: flag captains Jessica Gogerty and Michelle O'Brien, rifle captain Diane Van Rossum and secretary/treasurer Kathy Tomlinson. Their main duties were to make up the routines and teach them to the squad. Additional input and ideas were gained from the sponsor, Ms. Kim Bauman.

Flag captain Jessica Gogerty said, "This year's Color Guard was young but hard-working. They spent many hours perfecting routines. I'm very proud and pleased of our accomplishments this year. I think we have left a good foundation for next year. I just wish I could be around one more year to see how things go."

Through this year of change, the Color Guard presented many new styles at assemblies and various other performances. Appearances were also planned for the Veishea parade in Ames, The Drake Relays parade and the Tulip Days Festival in Pella. Also in the planning was a spring trip to Florida and possibly a summer camp in White Water, Wis.

Prop, Novelty 2nd in State

The Steppers "clowned" their way into a second-place finish with their prop and novelty routine at the Iowa State Drill Team contest Dec. 9 at S.E. Polk High School.

The Iowa State Drill Team contest was open to any high school drill team that wished to participate. There were five categories of competition in the contest: pom, dance, lights, prop and novelty, and flags/rifles. Each category was judged by national judges, and the top three in each class went on to compete in the finals, as the East High Steppers did.

In their award-winning routine, the Steppers used multi-colored clown wigs, red clown noses, and big baggy pants to enhance the choreography of their routine. The Steppers also received a Division I rating for their traditional pom routine. The routines that they performed were choreographed and organized by captains Anne Tesdall and Laura McMahon.

Over the summer, the Steppers attended the American Drill Team Camp at Creighton University in Omaha, Nebr. While there, they won the Sweepstakes trophy for a Division I rating in dance, marching and their own choreographed routine.

Sophomore Missy Moore executes the Steppers' marching routine with dynamic concentration as she whirls through the movements of the routine.

Angie Vasquez, junior, gives the audience a big, bright smile as she and the other Steppers perform their prop and novelty routine at the state contest.

Bright smiles and deep concentration got the Steppers their well-deserved Division I rating in the pom category at the Iowa State Drill Team contest.

STEPPER OFFICERS. Becky Forbes, treasurer; Laura McMahon, captain; Anne Tesdall, captain; Amina Wardak, secretary. The work of these four girls made the Steppers a huge success this past year.

Junior Shannon Young strikes a winning pose as she competes in the Miss Iowa Drill Team contest. Shannon placed ninth in the competition.

Marching Scarlets tune up this year

This year was a transitional year for Mr. Rex Cadwallader and the East High Marching Scarlets. The Marching Scarlets started their practices a week before school began. The freshmen learned how to march, while the returning band members practiced the music for the show.

The band room was not the only new thing the band received. They purchased several new instruments for the marching season: a new drum line, three marching trombones and two melophones. They were also allowed to use a marching bass.

With positive attitudes, the Marching Band went on to perform the hardest show ever written by Mr. Cadwallader. They went to four contests. One of the contests was a state contest, which was held at East for the second year in a row. Another was held in Kansas City, Mo., where the Marching Scarlets spent the night.

Seniors Joe Brazil and Steve Tobey pound away on their tri-toms.

Honor Band, Majorette, Orchestra and Treble Singers show spirit

To be a Majorette requires a lot of time and practice. The Majorette, sophomore Tish Parsons, practiced at least a half-hour each day.

The Majorette performs in front of the band. All eyes are upon her as she twirls her baton with precision and performs her acrobatic moves. This was Tish's second year as an East High Majorette. She began twirling the baton when she was in fourth grade.

She decided to try out for Majorettes when her teacher, a former East Majorette, told her she was talented enough. Tish plans on being a Majorette until she graduates. "The best thing about being a Majorette is being able to perform," she said.

It takes a lot of talent and dedication to be in the Orchestra. Getting the music right to perform in concerts took a lot of hard work and practice. Students were enthusiastic and commented on how enjoyable it was to play in the Orchestra.

Due to the ever-increasing interest in Scarlet Choir, a new vocal music group had to be formed. Therefore, Treble Singers came into existence. It was a very successful year for the group. They sang mostly pop music like "McCartney" and "Rock Around the Fifties".

The group included girls who could sing treble. The instructor, Mrs. Linda Baker, said, "The Treble Singers really improved as the year went along. The girls really enjoyed singing and are singing much better."

These talented groups had the opportunity to display their talents to the school and the community. They shared many memorable experiences together. They also received some valuable experience, should they want to choose musical careers.

The students and faculty enjoyed watching these young performers and left the performances satisfied.

Wind Ensemble challenging experience

Being a member of Wind Ensemble was the privilege of 44 musicians, all of whom were chosen through auditions. Wind Ensemble practiced every day during first hour. During these practices Wind Ensemble prepared itself for the many concerts and basketball games where they performed.

Their first concert was held Dec. 18; this concert consisted primarily of Christmas-oriented music.

They also participated in two concerts in the spring. The first one was held in February and the other was held in May.

Junior Brian Delk, trombone, commented, "This year's Wind Ensemble has been a real challenge for me. The music Mr. 'C' chose for me was really demanding, not only for myself but for the whole band."

Giving their all as they try to produce a perfect melody are junior Michelle Emery, sophomore Lisa Zimmer and freshman Jody Hulsebus.

Concert Band polishes up for coming concerts

Junior Kevin Swensen practices the trumpet while preparing himself for the many upcoming concerts that Concert Band performed throughout the year.

After the marching season was over, the Concert Band came indoors.

Concert Band included 75 members. The members of Concert Band practiced every day second hour, polishing their music for the Dec. 18 concert.

Concert Band is an intermediate band made up of freshmen and sophomores.

During the basketball season, Concert Band played for the home games.

Later in the spring they performed in two more concerts, one in February and another in May. The band also took a trip to Florida over the spring break.

Mr. Rex Cadwallader, director, said, "The arrangement this year of having the band divided into two groups is better than last year. It's a better musical experience for everyone in both bands."

"This enables me to give more individual attention to those who need it."

The Jazz Band group practices at their early morning rehearsals. Practice is the key word if the group is to do well in upcoming competitions. Many people feel that this Jazz Band group was one of the best ever at East.

Perfection is emphasized to each member in playing his or her piece. This group displays many talents and a lot of ambitious efforts.

Jazz Band director, Mr.Rex Cadwallader, helps some students perfect the way to play their music. Jazz Band performances were commended by all who listened to them.

Jazz Band: Keeping East filled with jazz

Concentrating on competition, The Jazz Band participated in contests at Ames in the State Jazz Band and Swing Choir competition, Central College in Pella, the University of Northern Iowa, Drake and Hoover High School. They also performed at four home basketball games.

The Jazz Band included 21 talented students who rehearsed at 7 a.m. on a daily basis. The members were selected by auditions only.

To improve and be the very best Jazz Band East has ever had were the main goals of the group.

Mr. Rex Cadwallader said, "This Jazz Band is certainly one of the best that East has had for the last couple of years."

If you listened to the Jazz Band, you truly enjoyed their performances.

Practice, drills and hard work produced the vocal qualities needed for singing in the voal music group, Chamber Singers.

The Chamber Singers included 31 members. Chamber Singers are a very select group of students. Some of the qualities Ms. Linda Chamberlin, director, looked for when choosing members were an enthusiastic attitude, an outstanding voice, the ability to read music well and dependability.

The Chamber Singers were kept quite busy. In the fall they performed in a musical event at the Civic Center entitled, "The Festivals of the Trees." Schools from all over the Des Moines area performed to raise money for the Blank Children's Hospital. They also performed at the Marriott Hotel, Iowa Lutheran Hospital, the three transitional schools in the East High area, Southridge Mall, various banks, the Pop Music Show and the Madrigal Dinner.

In the spring, they presented a play entitled, "Anything Goes." They also had the honor of performing at the Hoyt Sherman Auditorium for the Des Moines Women's Club.

Linda Birkinbine, senior, commented, "I feel that the years I've dedicated to Chamber Singers have helped me tremendously in my education. The class has prepared me for the many auditions, solos and performances I've participated in. I've enjoyed singing with the many excellent voices Chamber Singers was made up of these past few years."

As you can see, the Chamber Singers were kept busy. They gave many shows, and the potential of their abilities was marvelous. These young adults were "A" Number 1.

Prob. Solving, Gifted & Talented

The future Problem-Solving Committee, led by Ms. Anda Liepa, was one of the best squads in years. These young, bright, energetic students were given many problems which they were asked to provide solutions for. Anyone was allowed to join this group, although one had to be willing to work hard and try to solve major world and futuristic problems.

Are you of above average intelligence? Is school work sometimes not a challenge? Then maybe you should be in G&T (Gifted and Talented). This is a select group of young adults that have shown excellent qualities throughout their school days. This group attends seminars and has learned to do more challenging work.

Here Ms. Anda Liepa goes over some new and interesting materials with freshman Stephanie Rogness.

Anxiously awaiting his data to compute, a Central Campus student, junior Robert Lyle, punches in more information.

Students try new career areas at Central Campus

Central Campus is an extension of the programs of all high schools in Des Moines. It offers courses in 27 vocational-technical areas, as well as academic classes not available at the home high school. Students planning to graduate from any Des Moines high school had the option of attending Central Campus on a half-day basis, either attending three-period sessions in the morning or in the afternoon. Courses were primarily for eleventh and twelfth graders.

Students attending classes received free transportation from their home high schools to Tech and then back to their home high schools. Junior Robert Lyle commented, "Central Campus gave me the skills a college offers, and the people were nice and friendly."

East alive with foreign culture

Buenos dias!" or "Good Day!" For most of the student body, this is a simple greeting in Spanish. The Spanish Club was open to all of Mrs. Gwen Copple's Spanish students who wished to participate in the activities. One of the many activities was a program presented at Roosevelt High School by South American dancers. To boost the club's treasury for activities, the club sold poster calendars and first-aid kits.

* * * *

The French Club has been very active this past year. They have participated in many new and exciting events. Each of the 140 members had the opportunity to see a French play at Roosevelt High School, visit a French Cafe in Omaha, Nebr., to sample the delicacies of French cuisine and prepare French foods in class. Some others in the club attended a skiing trip or a spring break trip to Paris, France, and Rome, Italy.

In order for all of these activities to take place, the French Club sold fruit cakes and two-year planning calendars.

Again this year, East High had the pleasure of hosting four foreign exchange students. Those four students were Richard Aune and Even Hagelien, from Norway; Eugene Bode, from Holland; and Vicente Montojo from Spain.

Foreign exchange students Even Hagelien, Richard Aune, Vicente Montojo and Eugene Bode are in the U.S. to get acquainted with the American way of life.

The East High debaters had an outstandingly successful season. Twice, the Scarlet placed teams in the top 10 rankings in the novice league. The area in which the rankings were taken was in the Midwest and Alabama. In order to be ranked, the team's record must be better than that of the other teams in the area, and if it's the same, the rank is determined by the number of speaker points. The ranked teams were those of (1) Matt Townsend and Darren Bullard and (2) Randy Szymanski and Darren Bullard.

The International Club is one of the infant clubs in East High's spectrum of activities. The purpose of the International Club is to meet and learn about the foreign exchange students attending East High. The club members were invited to a "Lock-In," or overnighter, at Urbandale High School Dec. 1 to meet the exchange students from other schools. For the Christmas holidays, the club and foreign students had demonstrations of the traditional customs of Christmas in the foreign exchange students' countries.

Office assistants dish out help

Run this! File that! This was what some students did instead of going to study hall. The requirements for becoming an office assistant included having a study hall, passing grades and, of course, a good attitude.

What, exactly, did these students do? They ran all kinds of errands, from picking up attendance cards and answering telephones to helping in the attendance office.

Whom did they work for? They worked for advisers, counselors and just about every adult that worked in any East High office.

Students learn about office work

How would you like to earn money for going to school? Many students do so through OEA, the Office Education Association, which helps students earn money while going to school. For half of the day they went to school; during the other half, they went to work.

What's the purpose of OEA? It helped students learn how to work before they went into the working world, and it also helped with skills needed for college. The students learned to work with others.

The OEA members received on-the-job training doing secretarial work. They also learned to use machines correctly.

Imagine buying the yearbook for $30. If it weren't for the ads, that's what it might cost. The ad sales class gives the students on-the-job experience. The training for selling ads took place in the classroom. Showing the product, demonstrating the product and selling were some of the things taught in ad sales class.

To get into the ad sales class, a student had to be a junior or senior. Also, the student had to take an ad sales class before he could become a member of The Ad Club.

Sound and Light, TV Production have good year

Lights, camera, action' was the 1984-5 sound and light crew's motto. This year's crew had a number of major responsibilities. The crew set up microphones and tapes for assemblies and sporting events. They also set up lights and sound for the sports banquets. This crew was led by Ms. Ruth Ann Gaines and Mr. Adrian Martin. Students had to be approved by the supervising teachers.

TV Production was a group led by the fine instruction of Mr. Adrian Martin. This group made small productions of various types having to do with the school.

They also worked on a piece of film about East High School for Mrs. Norma Baranolsky, nurse, who wanted a film about East to send to her relatives at the end of the year.

JA classes sell goods for profit

The Scarlet Crew met its goals this year. They produced 200 calendars to sell and profit from, and they did successfully sell all 200 calendars to make a profit of $92.41. The crew was able to return to their stockholders a 25 percent profit on their investment.

The class was led by Tommy Mayse (President), Lori Coleman (Vice-president), Angie Hodges (Vice-president), Tammy Sandvig (Vice-president) and Marlee Oltrogge (Vice-president). The top seller of the calendars was junior Tracey Morgan.

The Scarlet Crew was part of the Applied Economics Classes, which are affiliated with Junior Achievement. JA is an organization sponsored by area businessmen to encourage students to work in the free-enterprise system.

Seniors strive for excellence

"It's a terrific opportunity for the seniors who did not go on the United Nations Trip when they were juniors. You learn government procedure and get a chance to participate. It is a great learning experience. I really had an interesting and exciting time!"

That was what senior Wendy Lorey said about a senior trip to Washington, D.C., called Close-Up. This trip was similar to the United Nations Trip taken by juniors during spring break. The Close-Up Trip was to Washington, D.C., from April 14 to April 20. The cost of the trip was $762.

Four seniors from East went on the trip: Wendy Lorey, Michelle Bell, Dianna Douglas and Monica Stone.

Teachers informed their senior students about the trip, and the interested students were asked to notify their teachers. The teacher sponsors were Mr. John Phillips and Mr. Jim Van Tuyl, social science teachers. Activities these four seniors participated in included political briefings. During these briefings they had many chances to express their own political beliefs.

The East High National Honor Society is a very worth while organization. The sponsor of the organization was Mr. John Raymond, East High English teacher. The organization's officers were Steve Cox, president; Kim Hosek, vice-president; Denise Hess, secretary; and Barb Worth, treasurer.

The National Honor Society had a very productive and busy year. One activity involved selling turkey cookies before Thanksgiving. This was a new activity in which a student could send a message on a cookie, shaped like a turkey, to that very special girl or guy. This was a very successful fund-raiser. Some of the other activities were the sponsoring of the Straight "A" Breakfast to reward students for achieving all "A's". Also, the group sponsored, for the second year, the Scarlet Standouts. This was a program to inform fellow East High students who among them should be recognized for being a leader in high school.

The National Honor Society met in room 335 on Wednesday afternoons. According to Mr. Raymond, the purpose of the National Honor Society was to "reward excellence in academic achievement".

Experience of a lifetime

The Upward Bound students were just that from June 3 to July 10. They were upward and bound for Central College in Pella.

Upward Bound was a program lasting for six weeks during the summer. The purpose of this program was to help students get a taste of college life.

The sponsors of this group were Ms. Vallery Griffis and Mr. Jack Bryan. There were 19 students from East involved.

"Experience of a lifetime." That's how many juniors expressed their opinion about the United Nations Trip.

Fifty-three students from East and 160 overall were involved. Students went to New York and Washington, D.C., during spring break.

To develop cooperation, positive interaction and unity among club members was the main goal this year for the Afro-American Culture Club, sponsored by Mrs. Vallery Griffis. Other goals involved increasing understanding and creating a positive image of the Afro-American culture, and promoting interest and respect for its members.

Any student could join; however most of the members were of Afro-American heritage. The meetings were held once a month.

There were many activities, including some old ones, but also some new: participating in the "Show and Share" program and distributing baskets to the elderly, as well as caroling and celebrating Kwanza (an African celebration usually observed from Dec. 26 through Jan. 1). The fund-raiser was a mixer where each participant had to bring a can of food to be admitted.

To promote science and make it more interesting was the primary goal of the Science Club. The group started out with a name. They called themselves The East Association of Science Youth.

The Science Club included 20 members ranging from freshmen to seniors. The members met the second and fourth Monday of every month.

The officers were President John Beardsley, junior; Vice-president Kristie Remster, sophomore; Secretary-treasurer Michelle Kelly, sophomore.

Activities this year included going to the Science Center, sponsoring an experiment with the "egg drop" (at this contest the members packed an egg inside a carton and dropped it from heights up to eight meters without the eggs breaking), touring a hospital and going on a camping trip during the spring.

Students choose FCA, Mimes

Silent Vibrations was a mime and dance group that performed twice each semester in 1984-5. To be in the group, students had to sign up for the mime and dance class that was offered fifth hour. In its twelfth year, Silent Vibes had 17 members. This year the group did a lot more dance routines than in the past, and performed more with more modern music, like songs from Prince's album "Purple Rain," and the "Jackson's Victory" album. The group gets new outfits every year. Another change took place: they used to perform in white face, but changed and sometimes performed without make-up.

Ms. Ruth Ann Gaines, sponsor, said, "This group was good on harmony and were hard workers. She also said, "Cooperation and effort mean more to me than talent. So if you're a hard worker and enjoy pantomime and dance, Silent Vibrations is the group to get into."

Fellowship of Christian Athletes is not only for high school athletes; it is for everyone who is a Christian. The FCA functions on three levels: local, state and national.

The group was sponsored by Mr. Tom Lutz. Fellowship of Christian Athletes met the first and third Monday of every month at 7:30 in Mr. Lutz's room.

Did you ever wonder why some groups just don't get into the assemblies? It was probably because they didn't send a representative to the assembly committee meetings. The assembly committee was made up of members of Color Guard, Steppers, and other groups.

Thanks to Students in Leadership, all of us will have fun times to remember. The holiday, after-game and special-occasion mixers were some of the funnest times we shared here at East.

DECA, Distributive Education Education Clubs of America, is a way the community and East High have of "shaking hands" and working together for a better future for all of us.

DECA is an on-the-job training program which fits students into jobs of their career choice. The employer then becomes a teacher and cooperates in classroom assignments that are given by the DECA teacher-coordinator, Mrs. Nancy Hansen. Some of the most popular fields students wanted to get into were general marketing, apparel and accessories marketing , and finance and credit skills.

BCC, Scarleteers improve EHS

The Building Climate Committee is a group of students, faculty and administrators who try to improve East in many ways. For example, the Academics Committee worked to improve the academics of the school, the Attendance Committee tried to improve the student attendance.

The Marketing Committee's job was to improve the image of East in the community. The Student Involvement Committee got students involved in East High.

Freshmen had an advantage this year. This advantage was a group called Scarleteers. About 200 students were involved in this organization. Scarleteers helped freshmen adjust to the hustle of high school. Each member was given the names of five ninth graders and had to contact them after school began. The Scarleteer had to keep in contact with them to see if they were getting along okay.

AFJROTC is a four-year program which involves learning aerospace information and leadership.

This year there was a new face teaching the leadership portion of this class. He was Chief Master Sergeant James Weiss, who taught AFJROTC in California for 10 years.

Students who took this class and graduated from AFJROTC had no military obligation, but it gave them an advantage if they decided to join the military.

Main goal: Help East High

The Triple E Club (EEE) was established to develop closer ties among school, community and surrounding areas. They had various fund-raisers in order to finance projects they did throughout the year. The outstanding members were honored for academic, vocational and service achievements. The sponsors were Mrs. Linda Saddoris and Mrs. Donna Christensen, learning resource teachers.

Discussing items that involve East High was the main purpose of the Building Advisory Council (BAC). The BAC, which was begun several years ago, was made up of the principal, five parents selected by the Parent-Teacher-Student Association, five teachers selected by the faculty and five students selected by their student peers. They met once a month to discuss problems that arose throughout the year. The chairperson was Mrs. Sondra Ricks, parent and the secretary was senior Heidi Raymond.

Freshman Kristy Gamble said, "The BAC is a very interesting organization and it is fun to be involved in. You get to meet a lot of people."

Senior Heidi Raymond said, "I think the BAC is a very worthwhile organization, and I was pleased to be chosen as a member.

Learning about drunk driving

SADD (Students Against Driving Drunk) is an organization aimed at educating students about the dangers of driving while intoxicated. The organization met throughout the whole year to discourage drunk driving. The group was divided into different committees that worked on various aspects of their promotion and the distribution of information. They made posters, planned a dance and distributed pamplets, along with other activities during Wellness Week.

The officers of SADD were seniors Monica Stone and Heidi Ricks (Co-presidents), senior Arla Green (Treasurer), sophomore Tracey Gabriel (Secretary) and senior Toni Hagar (Publicity Chairman). Mrs. Kathy Frette, home economics teacher, was their sponsor.

Senior Monica Stone said, "SADD is a wonderful organization, and it is serving the community in a good way by educating students about the dangers of driving drunk."

Senior Heidi Ricks said, "I think SADD is a good cause. It seems that a person thinks about drunk driving when he or she is affected by it. We are trying to bring about this awareness before something like this happens. We have a lot of good ideas that we hope will help."

Helping students who have special needs that cannot be met in a regular physical education class was the goal of the PEOPEL (Physical Education Opportunities for People who are Exceptional Learners) program. These special students worked with peer helpers from the "regular" physical education classes.

The peer helpers helped the special students to become more successful in gym class. The sponsors of this program were two physical education teachers, Mr. Mark Hurley and Mrs. Joyce Vickroy.

Junior Lora Rogerson, peer helper, said, "Being in this program has taught me many things about communicating and dealing with people."

Exhaustingly, sophomore Jack Shannon portrays some of the physical courage it takes to run mile after mile. Extensive workouts are often the experience athletes go through to become the best.

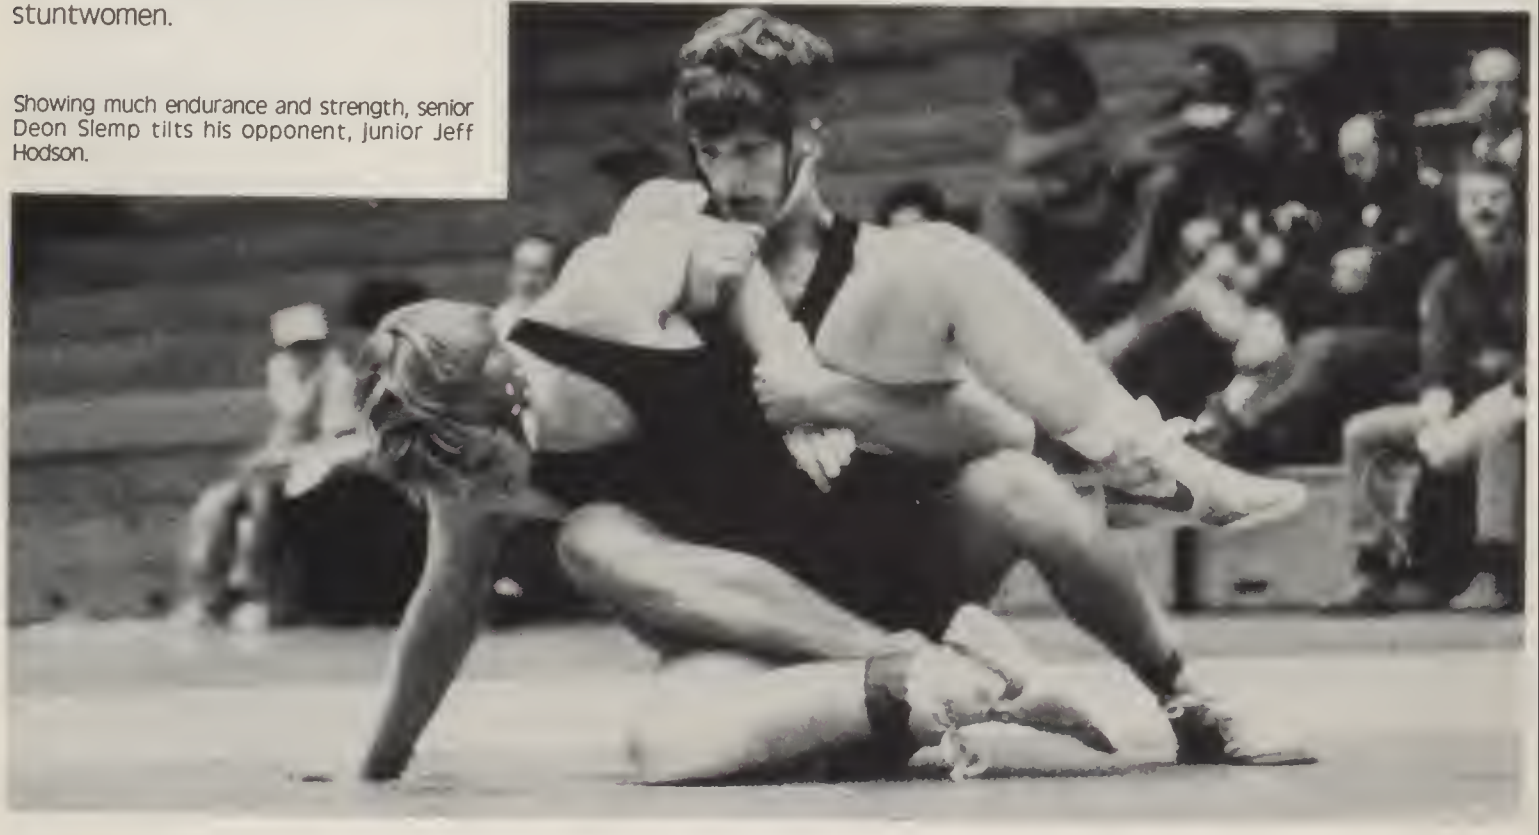
Concentration was an important factor for junior Michaele Gallagher as she performed on the beam.

Victory! The tedious practices spelled victory in many games, meets and matches for the sports year of 1984-85. The knowledge of playing one's best was victory itself.

Playing hard without being injured is an incredible feat to accomplish. In acting, stuntmen learn how to fall, crash, jump and wreck without injury. In sports, each participant knows how to sprawl, block, guard, tumble and increase endurance without calamity.

The stuntmen for actors do not receive much credit. But for all of the spirit displayed in sports at East, the staff congratulates East's athletes for playing their best and bringing home many victories. East is very proud of its Scarlet champion stuntmen and stuntwomen.

Showing much endurance and strength, senior Deon Slemp tilts his opponent, junior Jeff Hodson.



Junior Maurice Newby rises over a North-Tech opponent for a basket in one of many Scarlet victories. This varsity team was ranked near the top in the state rankings throughout the year.

Bankus retires: 14 years' service

Inexperience led to a very disappointing season for the Scarlet football team. The team managed just two victories in eight tries.

The team's weakness was its inexperience. At the end of the season, there were seven juniors starting on the offensive unit. Their asset was size.

Mr. John Bankus, head coach, said, "It was a very disappointing season. We knew it was going to be a tough year, but we expected to do better."

The best game of the season was played against Lincoln. Everything seemed to be going right until a last-second touchdown spoiled the Scarlet's hope, 20-19.

Levi McGuire, senior, was named the team's "offensive player of the year," while senior Pug Starcevich won the defensive award. Both were very consistent throughout the season.

McGuire, Starcevich and senior Scott Fogle were named to the All-Metro team. These players also received honorable mention All-State. Those making second team All-Metro were seniors Angelo Palmer and Cyrone Wilson and junior Larry Young.

Next year the Scarlets will be without the coaching services of Mr. Bankus. Mr. Bankus resigned from the head coach position after four years. He was an assistant for 10 years before becoming head coach. Mr. Bankus said he really enjoyed working with all the coaches, players and the East High administration. Mr. Bankus commented that his greatest victory was the 13-3 defeat of Dowling in 1983. It was the first time an East High football team had defeated Dowling in many, many years.

This season will go down in history as a disappointing season but a learning season. The juniors will return along with a strong sophomore team to form a good team. It was also the end of an era, the Bankus era. The East High football program will miss Mr. Bankus very much. He did a great job of coaching our young men over a span of 14 years. He took over as head coach with a young team and turned them into winners, just like he did with all of his teams.

Freshmen have winning season: watch'em in '85

"Energetic and full of heart" best describes the 1984 freshman football team. The freshman team, which included 54 team members, came out with a shining 6-2 record. Coach Walt Kennedy and Assistant Coaches Bob Carmichael and Mark Hurley were very, very proud of their team. Coach Kennedy, who has had outstanding teams, said, "I'm very proud of the young people. They came out with a lot of heart and willpower. They set goals for themselves and went out and achieved them. This will be a team to see in the future."

With all the heart that was on that team, it's a wonder they didn't munch their opponents up. Size didn't matter, because they had the heart to achieve.

Girls' cross country team rebuilds with large numbers, youth, spirit

The girls' cross country team had a good rebuilding season. The team had a good balance of returning runners and new team members. Four girls from last year's team returned to help the 11 new members along.

"Last year we ended with six girls on the team, and this year we ended with 15," remarked Coach Richard Phipps about the team's growing size.

Coach Phipps thought that the team's greatest strength was "people working together because of the injuries. We had only six girls running in the Metro Meet because of the injuries."

The Urbandale Classic at Walker Field was thought to be the team's best meet. Coach Phipps recalled, "The girls ran very well there and placed sixth out of 18 teams."

This year's captain was junior Jennifer Fuller, who ran in every meet on the varsity team. "She was a really fine runner, and did well for the team," said Coach Phipps.

Some of the girls thought running with the team was a good experience. Laurel Jensen, junior, commented, "There were a lot more people out for the team this year. I thought it was fun, but hard work was part of it also."

Junior Jill Shepard said, "I felt our team wasn't as good as it could have been. We weren't in the greatest shape and it showed in many of our meets."

"We needed to work harder and run longer distances."—Jennifer Fuller, junior

Largest East boys' team ever shines through

"Numbers and youth" were the team's strengths in the 1984 season, according to Coach Don Graves.

The team had a great season with the largest boys' cross country team ever at East. "At one time there were 42 on the team, and we ended up with 34 runners," recalled Coach Graves.

The best meet for team effort was the Urbandale Classic, where the team placed third out of 16 teams. Coach Graves said, "As far as best times are concerned, we did very well at the Cardinal Invitational in Newton."

Co-captains for this year's team were juniors Bob Rice and Jeff Howe. Coach Graves felt that the two co-captains showed good leadership and effort for the team.

Young, inexperienced squad moves forward to better campaign in 1985

"Ninety percent mental" is how Coach Mary Bourne described the game of volleyball. Coach Bourne felt that even the best athletes could not play volleyball unless they thought about what they were doing. Coach Bourne maintained that it is not only "smarts," though that make a great player, but that the player must also have the actual ability.

Coach Bourne was also impressed by the way the team improved with every game. She thought that if there had been more time left in the season, the team's record would have been better. With the loss of only two varsity players, next year the varsity team should be much improved, she thought.

The strenghth of the 1984-5 girls' volleyball team was its team play. The girls were a well-rounded team with not one, but many stars.

The team members were very unselfish and played well as a unit. Confidence was gained throughout the season. The young gals got off to a rough start, but as the season progressed and the team became more sure of themselves, they played better. The biggest improvement made by the team, from the beginning of the year to the end, was its serves. All girls on the team made great strides in this area.

East's best match came against Dowling. Even though they did not win, Coach Bourne felt it was the overall best performance by the girls. Their weakest match came against Valley. Coach Bourne thought that in this match the girls did not use their mental awareness.

Over all, the team's season was much better than the record indicates. The team was lead by co-captains Linda Birkinbine and Denise Hess. Linda was a second-team all-metro performer, while Denise was an honorable mention performer. Other top players were first team all-metro player Tammy Doland and honorable mention performer Dawn Cameron. With the good crop of young talent returning next year, East's volleyball program seems to be headed in the right direction.

Senior Co-Captain Linda Birkinbine eagerly awaits the ball for her shot as sophomore Leslie Mosher looks on.

Girls swim and dive in '84-5

This year the East High girls' varsity swimming team was a young one made up of nine freshmen, six sophomores, five juniors and only three seniors.

Competing in a varsity sport takes a lot of dedication, natural talent and hard work. This means that, in order to excel during the season, the swimmers had to work hard during the summer, too.

Even though the season was over in October, the swimmers swam 10 or 11 months out of the year. During the summer they went to camps to improve the quality of their swimming.

"There was good improvement by the sophomores," said Coach Ken Gaeth.

During the season Michaele Gallagher, junior, placed sixth in the metro in diving. The top four went on to state. Heidi Ricks, senior, was voted the "all-around swimmer" award, and the "most-improved" award went to Cindy Ruttenburg, sophomore. Ames, Hoover, Roosevelt and Valley seemed to be the toughest competition for the team. Rhonda Allison, freshman, said, "In spite of our record, we really worked hard."

The following were letterwinners: Kim Hackett, Lori Myers, Heidi Ricks, Mindy Bishop, Gwen Cunningham, Michaele Gallagher, Sherry Cardis, Missy Moore, Cindy Ruttenburg, Barb Weiland, Kristy Mikesell, Lynn Schooley.

"It was a fun and exciting season. We worked hard and gave it our all. Good luck next year, girls."
—Lori Myers, senior

The captains this season were the three seniors: Kim Hackett, Heidi Ricks, and Lori Myers.

"I thought the divers did well and I hope we can do even beter next year," said freshman Stacey Murray.

Janell Anderson, freshman said, "We worked together as a team, and through it all, we kept our spirits up."

Girls shoot to a year of improvement during the varsity basketball season

Improvement. That was one of the most important factors for the girls' varsity basketball team. By the end of the season the team free-throw and field-goal percentage was up. The turnover percentage was down, which was a good sign for the coach, Mr. Mark Tiby. "Every girl on the team improved in something. We were the most improved team in the Metro conference," he said.

The East defense out-rebounded their opponents 403 to 198. East was led by senior and co-captain Alycia Simpson in the rebound department with an impressive 181 rebounds. On the offensive side, junior Lori Anderson led in scoring with an average of 27.0 points per game, which was good enough for third in the metro.

Letterwinners were seniors Natali Justiniano, co-captain; Alycia Simpson; Daleen Bullard and Tiffany Poston. Junior letterwinners were Lori Anderson, Shawn Boers, Tish Sappenfield and Jill Shepard. There were two sophomores who lettered; they were Kelly Bonwell and Dawn Cameron.

Talent flourished throughout the team. Alycia proved this by being chosen for the first team All-Metro, while teammates Lori and Dawn were chosen for honorable mention.

This was the last year for girls' six-on-six in the Metro Conference. Starting next year, East will start playing girls five-on-five.

Sophomores battle Metro foes

Consisting of seven freshmen and six sophomores, the East sophomore girls' basketball team displayed much improvement and determination at each game. However, the team played better on the road than on their home court. The team's best games were at Lincoln and Roosevelt, in which both the forward court and the guard court worked together simultaneously.

The leading scorer was Dawnette Williams, who compiled a total of 299 points. The leading rebounder was Tracey McLeod, who grabbed 81 rebounds for the season. Overall, the team made 42 percent of their field goals and 56 percent of their free throws.

Named as the "most-improved" forward was Kelly Gunn, named as the "most-improved" guard was Cyndy Carter.

Illnesses kept the team from having their three top guard on the court at the same time. The team worked well together but were inconsistent at times. Nonetheless, Miss Teri Webster, coach, felt that the girls inspired one another and tried as hard as they could.

"We had a few ups and downs, nevertheless, it turned out to be a good season." —Angie Eyerly

Kristy Gamble, Kelley Bonwell, Cindy Ruttenburg, Stephanie Rogness, Jenny Carroll, Dawnette Williams and Kelly Gunn also played on the varsity girls' basketball team. Their contributions to the varsity team were greatly appreciated.

Despite having a 7-13 record for the season, the team's dedication to the sport of basketball was a great asset to East's athletic programs. The team displayed sportsmanship and played every game with enthusiasm and determination.

Coach Webster said, "These girls were fun to work with and were very coachable. They should do well playing on the varsity team next year."

Freshman Stephanie Rogness shoots a jumper for two points, while a Lincoln defender goes for the ball.

Freshmen adjust to new five-on-five instead of traditional six-on-six play

Basketball is a sport which requires a lot of concentration. Every game was filled with anxiety as well as determination.

Aggressiveness was certainly present in the freshman girl's A-Team. The A-Team included 17 players. The high scorers in this group were Michelle Paterson and Angie Sease. Coach Kathy Erickson commented, "The girls really seemed to enjoy themselves this year. There was a low dropout ratio, which really helped get the season off to a great start."

The girls had to adjust to the five-player system, which was a real challenge, according to Coach Erickson. They seemed to adjust very well. They really seemed to enjoy the concept of total teamwork. The girls got a chance to play every position instead of sticking just to one.

One of the A-Team's highlights of the season was their defeat over Valley near the end of the season.

According to Coach Erickson, the B-Team never lacked spirit and determination. She also commented that the B-Team was very consistent. They always had a lot of enthusiasm that carried them through the toughest of times. The high scorers of the B-Team were Jennifer Huffman and Angie Silver.

Coach Erickson feels that the freshman girls that played as sophomores, and the freshman team together, will provide a winning varsity combination in the years to come.

Scarlets capture first Metro title

The crisp, cold air of winter brought to East High the basketball season. Basketball fever was in the air and it seemed to cling to all of those who witnessed the great success of the boys' varsity basketball team. Each Friday night the gymnasiums in which the boys played were filled to capacity with a sea of red and black. Students and parents at the games were very supportive of the team. The students started trends that spread throughout the Metro conference.

The Scarlets had a most memorable season. For the first time in boys' varsity basketball history at East, the Scarlets were crowned Metropolitan Conference champions after the defeat of the Lincoln Railsplitters at the Roundhouse. The Scarlets also had the opportunity to knock off three teams rated higher than themselves, which they did with great success. Conquering the rated teams began right at the beginning with the Scarlets' first game of the year against seventh-rated Carroll-Kuemper. The East cagers posted a 66-to-60 victory over a very distraught Carroll-Kuemper team. The next giant to fall was Class 2A's number-one-rated Cedar Rapids Regis in a 79-to-56 victory for the powerful Scarlet. The next clash of the rated teams happened at the Valley Gymnasium. The gym was filled to overflowing and was hot with excitement. East turned the night into their own show, beating third-rated Valley 78-61.

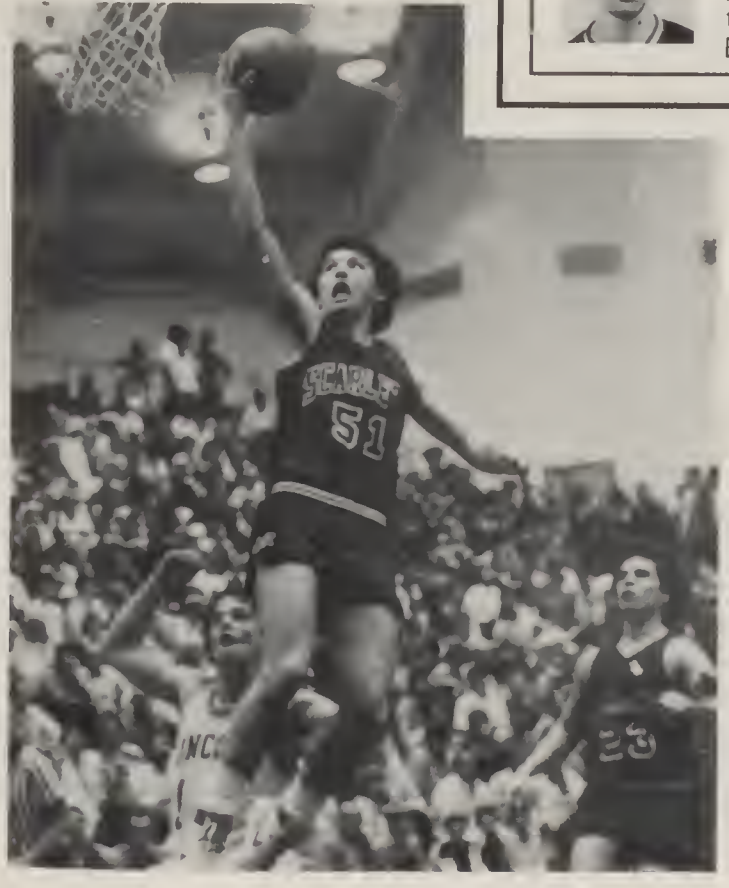
The journey to fame was not an easy one. There were many close Scarlet games that left many people with clenched hands and crossed fingers until the final buzzer sounded, most of the time with East showing up on top. There were only two times that the Scarlets didn't come out on top and that was against Valley, in a tough Metro loss, 48-to-44, and then the tragic, heart-breaking, tear-jerking loss to Dowling in double overtime of the sub-state final. This loss brought the Scarlets' glorious season to an abrupt end.

Coach Chuck Sutherland said that he was very proud of his team, having only two losses this season, but he wished that the disappointments had come at another time during the season so that they (the team) could have gone on to the state tournament.

As far as stats go, juniors Maurice Newby and Jason Reese led in scoring, averaging 17.3 and 14.1 points per game, respectively. Jason also led in rebounding. Junior Mike Pavon led in assists.

"Even though we didn't make it to state we had a very positive season. I wish the team the best." — Brian James, senior

The boys' varsity basketball team and coaching staff expressed a very special thanks to all of those who faithfully supported them throughout the year. Their spirit was greatly appreciated.



Junior Scott Winters shows great leaping ability as he turns a fast break against Lincoln into an easy two points.

In heavy defensive traffic, junior Larry Young pulls up for a jump shot, contributing two points to East's victory over Lincoln.

Upstart freshmen go 12-5

Led by 42 young and excited boys, the freshman boys' basketball team came through with an excellent season. The team was led by Head Coach Joel Caldwell and Assistant Coach Jack Payne.

Coach Caldwell felt that the boys played hard this year. Their most difficult game was the second game played, against Valley, which East lost, 72-60. Their best showing of the year came in the Polk County Tournament, when they defeated Dowling 62-48 to take third place.

The team's greatest assets were their quickness and willingness to learn and play the game hard. The team's biggest weakness was its lack of height.

Coach Caldwell also gave out some awards this year. The most valuable player of the team was Matt Mikesch, while Kevin Molloy received another coaches' award, for best sportsmanship. Dusty Sheets was named team captain.

This year's boys' sophomore basketball team had a fine campaign. The team finished its season with a record of 13-5. Led by Coach Jerry Hall, this was one of the finest teams ever assembled for sophomore basketball.

"We had a really good year and we really worked well as a team." — Dereck Lewis, sophomore

The team was led by Dereck Lewis and 11 other dedicated team members. The team's strengths were their togetherness, quickness and ability to work hard in practice.

Their two 40-point victories over North were their most impressive victories of the season. The opening loss against Ames by one point and a four-point win over Valley to close the season were the team's two toughest games.

'Above average' boys' swim team has good season

"The team started out slowly, but came on strong during the last two weeks of the season," commented Coach Gaeth.

Many of the team's best times were broken at the district meet, where the team took fourth place. "That's where you want the best times," coach Gaeth said.

According to Coach Gaeth, the team was young and very enthusiastic. The team had senior leadership in Chris Madsen, the only senior swimmer on the team. "We lost many seniors from last year, but this year's team was solid," reflected Chris.

The team entered in three state qualifying events. Junior Dave Wright swam in the 50-meter freestyle and junior Scott Evans qualified in diving. The free-relay team, which included junior Todd McCombs, junior Chet Sewell, junior Dave Wright and sophomore Rick Dunagan, also made it to state.

Building year for gymnastics

For the gymnastics team this was a building year. The team was young and inexperienced, so they had the opportunity to learn about competition and gain experience.

The girls competed in the four basic events: uneven parallel bars, balance beam, vault and floor exercise. Tumbling was omitted from the competitions because of the request of coaches and judges in Iowa.

Michaele Gallagher, junior, was the team's highest scorer. Michaele scored most consistently in floor exercise and vaulting.

Strengths of the team this year were vault and floor. The weakness besides the young team's inexperience, was in the bars event, because there weren't enough girls to compete in the event.

Head Coach Joyce Vickroy stressed the importance of performing up to one's potential. She said, "The gymnastics team performed to their potential, even though they had their falls."

Gymnastics is a sport which involves a lot of teamwork and concentration. Every meet was filled with anxiety as well as determination. The girls had to keep in good shape in order to do well in competition.

Wrestlers face the challenge

This year was a new beginning for the East High wrestling program. Under the new coach, Mr. Gary Rourke, many changes were made. To start things off, the wrestlers sold ads for the annual wrestling program. All together, the wrestling club raised over $2,400. With this money they purchased new wall mats for the wrestling room. There will also be new wrestling mats for the wrestling room next year.

The team had one state qualifier this year, sophomore Trent Lumley at 126 pounds. Trent looks forward to another good season next year, also.

"This year was a really good year for the sophomores, and next year they should be really good." —Deon Slemp, senior Coach Rourke was assisted this year by Mr. Bob Carmichael and the freshman coach, Mr. Tom Lutz. He also had help from Managers Karene Hudnall, senior, Shellie Turner, senior, Pam Wilson, junior, and Becky McClurg, sophomore.

Coach Rourke hopes that this year's wrestlers will keep in shape this summer so that next year the team can be stronger as a whole. Three lucky wrestlers will be awarded with admittance to the wrestling camps this summer. At these camps wrestlers will learn wrestling skills and will also learn more about weight training, which is a very important part of being a good wrestler.

Girls' team breaks records, places fifth in state meet.

The 1984 girls' track team had an excellent season. Nine school records were broken, four metro conference records were broken and East won its first large track meet at Dowling. The team averaged over 70 points a meet and twice scored over 100 points. Seven of East's events ranked in the top five in Iowa.

East also won in the Drake Relays in the 4x4. This was won by sophomore Lisa Edmonds, junior Michaele Gallagher, senior Alycia Simpson and graduate Lorrie Ginther.

"Last year we had a good season, but this year we are going to win state." —Jill Shepard, junior

At state, Alycia Simpson, senior, won second place in the 200. Robin Reese, graduate, placed third in the discus. The poor district performance, however, prevented East's winning the state title.

The team's hard work really paid off. The 1984 team was the best that East has ever had.

Young trackers race to improve in '85

At the end of the season, 54 energetic athletes made up the boys' track team. Fourteen returning letterwinners showed their experience and endurance throughout the season.

The highlights of the season were shown by the performance of Allen Downey, who won the metro conference in discus and then went on to state. Outstanding performances were given by Jayson Murray, Kenny Lyle, Chris Zallek, and John Jewett in the 4 x 100 and 4 x 200 relays. They also participated in the state meet. Coach Don Graves felt that the team's greatest strengths were the sprinters, the discus throwers, the number of students participating and the performances by the young runners.

Girls' golf team putt their way: rebuilding year

The girls' golf team went through a rebuilding season this year. They finished the year with a record of zero victories and eight defeats.

There was a total of seven golfers on the team. The top player was Kris Bauer.

When Mr. John Schnoor, coach, was asked what the team's greatest strength was, he said, "Well, all of the golfers were pretty." The team's weakness was its lack of experience.

This year was a very rough one for the team, but maybe next year they can pick up a few players and have a productive season.

Boys' golf team gains experience and progresses

The basics of the game of golf are fairly easy to learn; however, it takes a lot of practice and experience to master this sport. The reason for this is that every game is unique. A player has 14 clubs and numerous positions to choose from each time he swings at the ball.

The 1984 boys' golf team tried to gain experience to help them master this sport.

Although their season was not a winning one, they did make some accomplishments. They placed ninth in the Valley Classic, sixth in the Knoxville Invitational, seventh in the Southeast Polk Ram Invitational and seventh in the sectional meet.

Boys' tennis team nets first win in two years

The 1984 boys' tennis team was successful in breaking a two-year losing streak with a 7-4 victory over North.

The team was led primarily by seniors. Numbers 1, 2, 3 and 4 were, respectively, seniors Don Frisby, Joe Hayworth, Steve Cox and Linn Betts.

First-year Coach Cheryl Woods felt that the team's strength was made through hard work. She named Linn Betts the "most improved" player. She also felt that the teams' weakness was its lack of experience.

A fourth-place showing in districts ended the season on a high note, and the boys' tennis team could be a metro contender in 1985 with the return of its top six players.

Team spirit leads girls' tennis team to four victories in '84

In March, 1984, a group of girls came together, under the direction of Coach Pat Knott, to form the girls' tennis team. With their strength united, pure determination and stiff muscles, the girls doubled their wins over their previous season.

Team spirit was their true asset, and they also had one player go to sectionals. Tina Moberg was the first girl to go to sectionals in over 25 years. She was 9-3 in dual meets for the season.

Mrs. Knott said about the team: "We have a good strong nucleus of experienced players" for the '85 season.

Varsity season: ups and downs

Winning the Saydel Tournament was the greatest highlight of the 1984 varsity baseball team. The team, coached by Mr. Chuck Sutherland, won the tournament after defeating Indianola 17-5. The team consisted mainly of graduates. The tournament had a few outstanding Scarlets. Ray Craig, third baseman; Erik Seskis, shortstop; Jim Gallagher, outfielder, and Kelly Pigg, pitcher and first baseman, made the Saydel All-Tournament team.

A few outstanding individuals made the Metro All-Conference team. The selections were Steve Michelsen, catcher; Kelly Pigg, utility player, and Jim Gallagher, outfielder, who made first team. Ray Craig, pitcher, made second team, and Erik Seskis, short stop, received Honorable Mention. The team had 14 letterwinners and 6 of those are returning. It was an up-and-down season, with an 18-12 record.

Coach Sutherland said, "We will lose some very good players, but we will have some very good players returning and coming up."

The team had some outstanding players, but it is always the team that decides how well the team does.

Scott Winters, junior: "We had a fairly good season; it helped everyone improve, as well as the team."

Rick Sweet, junior: "I think we had a good season; everybody did his best."

"We had a good season this year, but we'll be better next season."—Sal Rincon, senior

Sophomores place second in Metro

Potential and consistency is what made up the 1984 sophomore baseball team. The team's greatest highlight came when they played Indianola. It was an 18-4 victory, with Larry Young hitting a grand-slam homerun in the fourth inning. After that, the team hit RBI after RBI for a massive win.

Doug Loomis, junior: "I think the team grew as a whole and has improved for the better."

Brad Bellis, junior: "The team was the best Coach Hall has ever coached. It also helped us for varsity."

Jeff Brooks, junior: "We had a super-great season. I think the reason we did so well was that we played together instead of playing like individuals."

Brian Ayersman, junior: "The season was encouraging and helped prepare us for the varsity team."

Les Stephen, junior: "We played like a team and won like a team; it was an excellent all-team effort. Only the bad breaks cost us the Metro."

The team ended second in the metro. Overall, the team will be a team to watch in the upcoming season.

East upends third-rated Rails

It was a hot summer evening at the ballpark and the adrenalin was running high in the Scarlet softball players' bodies as they prepared to take on the third-rated Lincoln Railsplitters.

The Scarlets were up against the odds in the game—it was Lincoln's home game, and the Railsplitters were considerably favored over the Scarlets.

Finally, it was time for the game to begin. The Railsplitters took the field; they were overconfident about a win, but the Scarlets were ready for them and knew they'd have to play tough, hard-nosed ball to pull this one through. The Scarlets had confidence in themselves and they knew that they could do it.

The game began and seemed to drag on with no apparent end, for the score was 0-0 for six innings, but then it happened. In the top of the seventh, graduate Brenda Dyer singled with one out. Brenda was then moved to second with a sacrifice bunt by junior Shawn Boers. Then came the finale, as sophomore Tammy Doland hit a ground ball to Lincoln's second baseman, Fran Fuson, who in turn mishandled the ball, giving Brenda enough time to score the winning and only run of the game.

East had prevailed, but only for a short time, because the following night, the Scarlets were upset by North. State tournament hopes were dashed.

All in all, the Scarlet softball team had a good season, although they didn't quite accomplish their goal of going to state. Eight returning letter-winners looked to the 1985 season with ambition and hope. Two of those eight helped lead in batting averages this past season; they were juniors Dawn Bergis and Shawn Boers. Dawn was also named to the second team of the Central Iowa All-District team. These accomplishments will help make future seasons a success.

"We didn't get the breaks at the times we needed them, but overall, we had a good season." —Dawn Bergis, junior

JV, frosh turn in victorious seasons

"Thirteen" and "four" were the numbers that the junior varsity softball team was to be proud of as their season record.

Ms. Mary Bourne, head junior varsity coach and assistant varsity softball coach, said that the team accomplished a great deal by winning close games with Hoover and by playing a very sound, solid game against Ankeny, losing by only one run.

The JV team was made up of very young players, many of whom had great potential in possibly making themselves known on the varsity squad in coming years.

This was Ms. Bourne's first year of coaching softball at East, and she was very happy with her JV squad's sucShe used her coaching philosophy of being a team player and having confidence in oneself, the team and the coach to accomplish a winning record.

The freshman softball team liked to run the score up on their opponents. The freshman softballers were victorious in all games, except two, by the "10-run-rule," which means, that if a team is leading by 10 runs after five innings of play, then the game is over.

The freshman softball team was new, in 1984, to the East High sports program. This was the first year that there had been a metro league for frosh. In past years, a player had to be an exceptional softball player to make the team as a freshman, because there were only two teams, and the competition from the upperclassmen was tough. Having a freshman softball team promised to do great wonders to develop good softball players for the varsity and JV levels.

Thanks to the people behind the lines

To the people behind the lines helping the great athletes of East High: We thank you. You had one of the dirtiest jobs a student could have. You took care of the equipment, swept the floors, cleaned the mats and probably did one of the toughest jobs a person could do: help the injured.

Being a manager is a rewarding job, according to those who were managers. Pam Wilson, wrestling manager, said, "I liked being the manager of the wrestling squad because I made a lot of friends." Managers received valuable training for the future by working and helping other people.

Joe Mathews, a boys' varsity basketball manager, said that he felt it was a pleasure to work with and to help the boys' basketball team.

To all the managers: Thank you for helping our athletes to winning seasons. It was a job well done.

Gorgas finds a pattern for ITED tests

New Computers help students and teachers

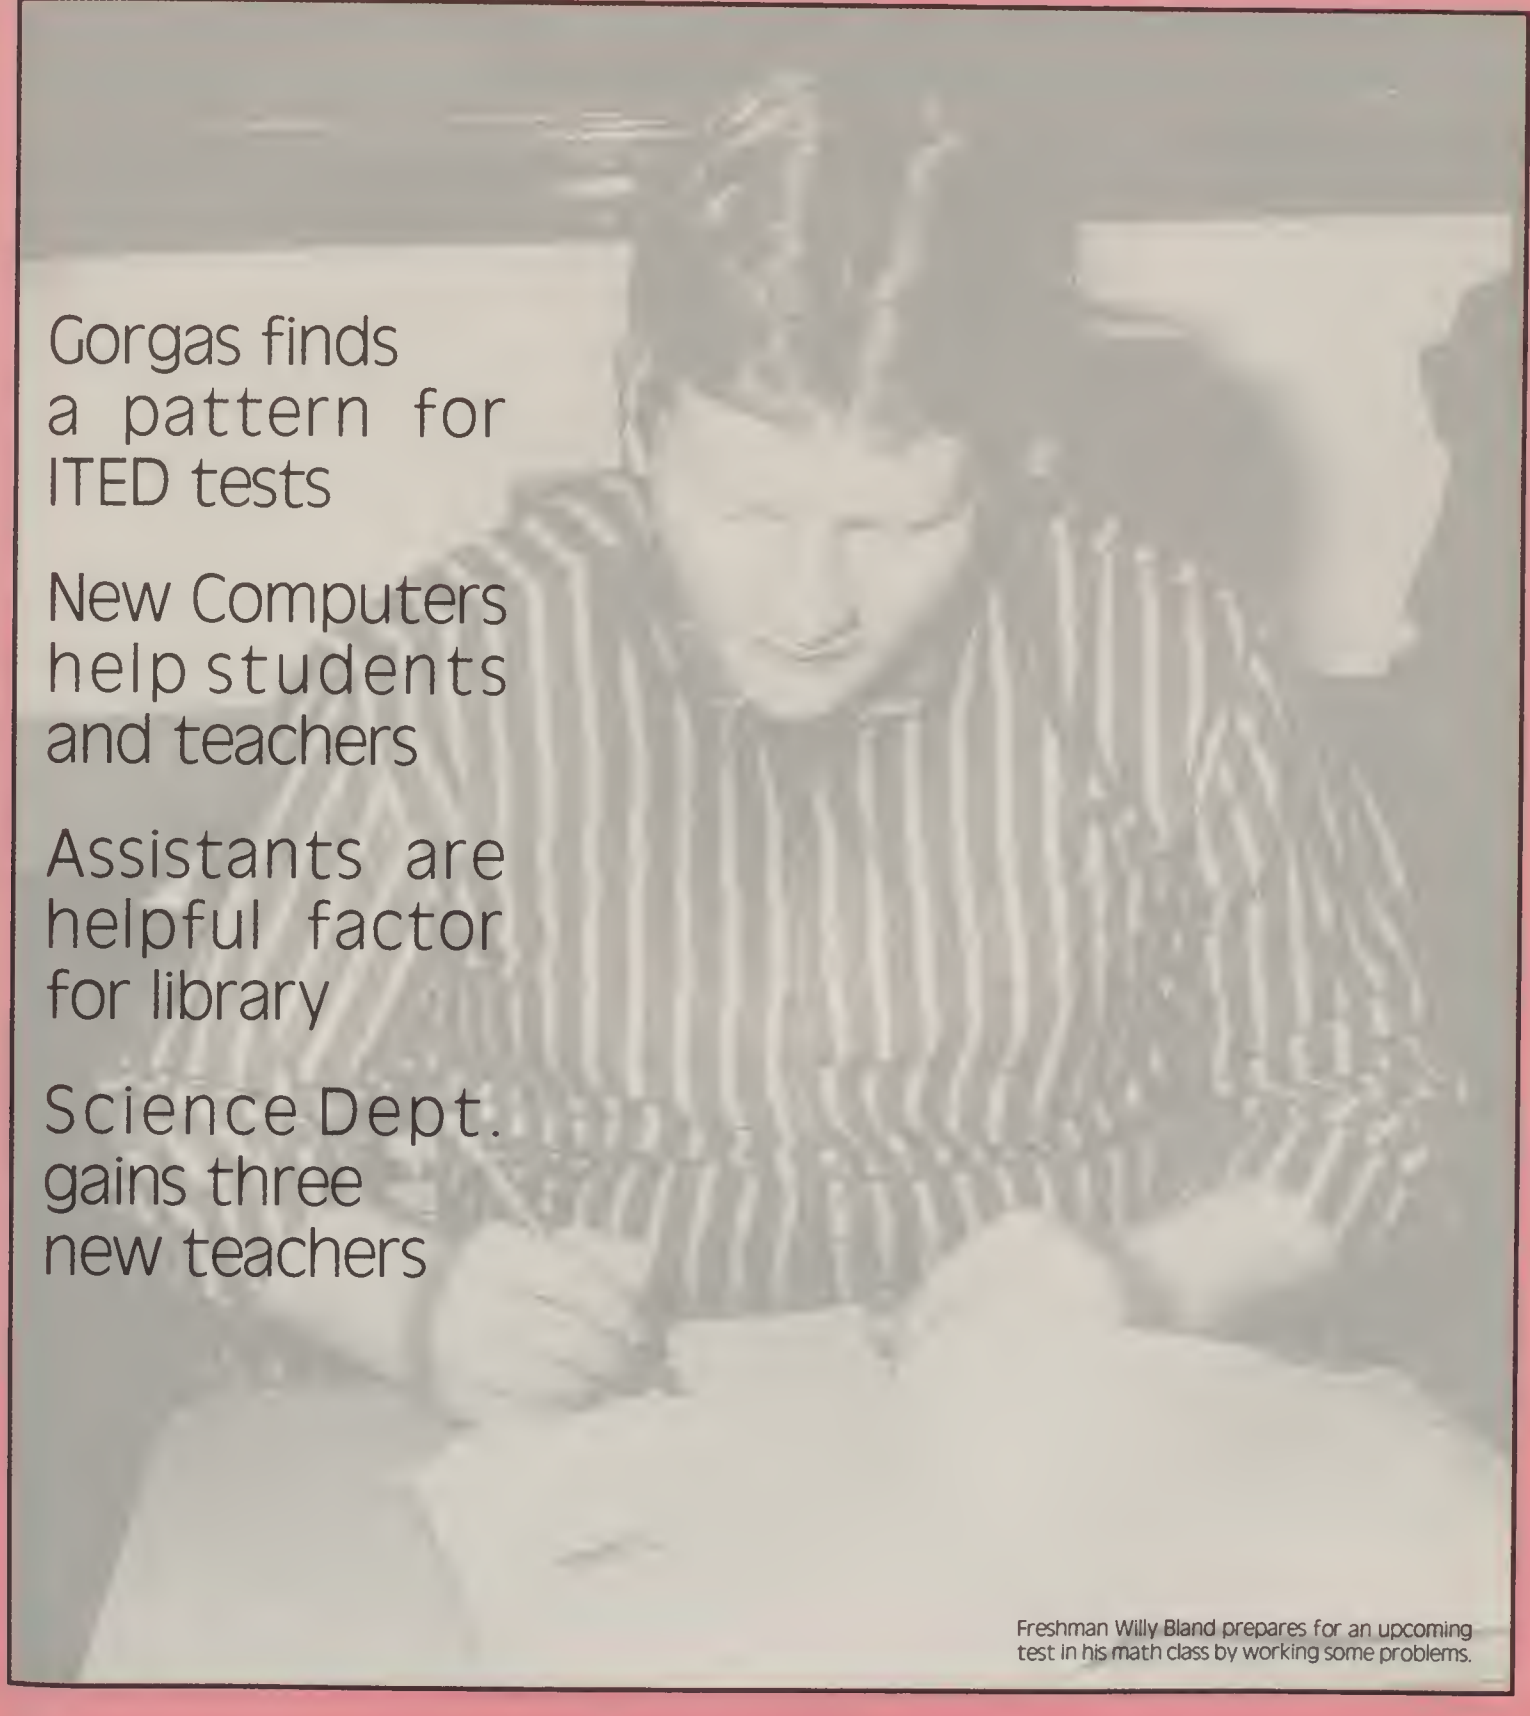
Science Dept. gains three new teachers



Freshman Willy Bland prepares for an upcoming test in his math class by working some problems.

Senior Ric Gorgas, the person who solved the ITED pattern. The ITED's are given yearly to high school students in Iowa.

Gorgas cracks pattern

How would you like to score in the 99th percentile on your Iowa Tests of Educational Development (ITED)? Would you like to know a pattern that would help you get that kind of a score on the ITED's? Well, you are in luck. East High had someone that could help you with that little problem. His name is Ric Gorgas, a senior that happened to find that pattern.

On the day everyone was hard at work on the tests, Ric finished early on his first test. Deciding to go ahead on his other tests, he came upon a pattern. Ric said, "I came upon the pattern and told the kid beside me, 'Hey, I think I found a pattern to these.'"

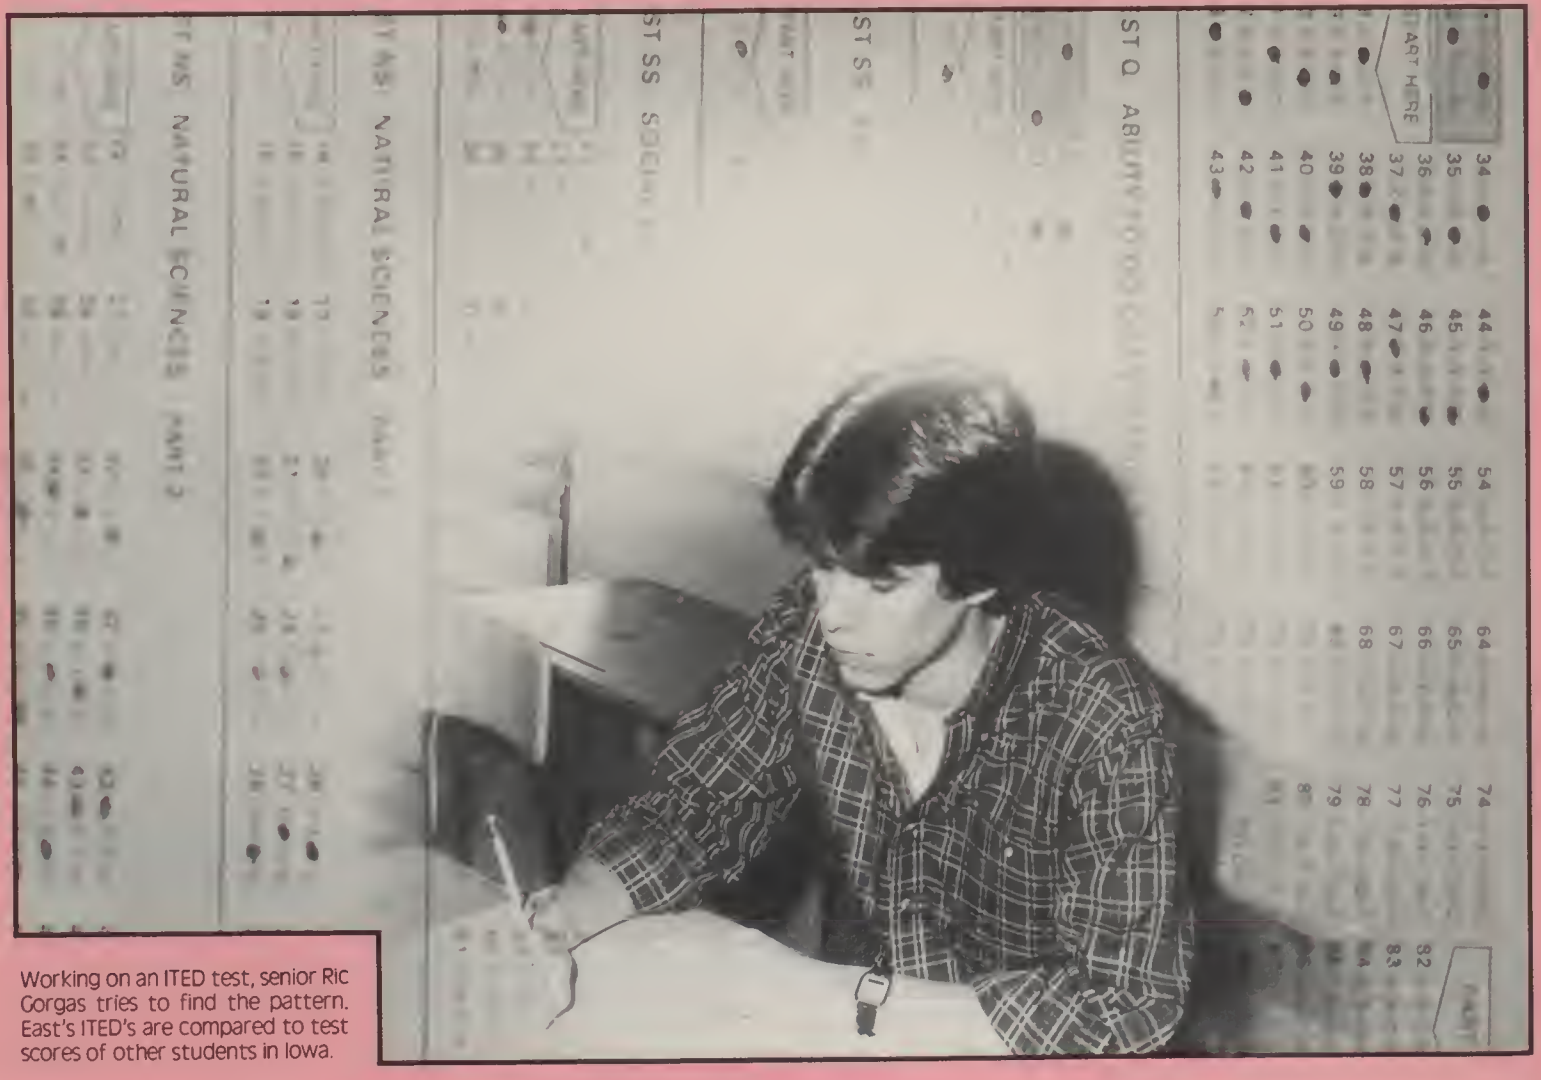
"I didn't plan on looking for a pattern," Ric said. "It didn't take me long to find the pattern, either."

When Ric told his parents that he had found a pattern, he said they really didn't take him seriously. Of course they believed the story when they read it on the front page of the Des Moines Register the next morning!

Ric said, "After taking the tests I went to Mr. John Philips' room and told him to try the pattern. When he found out the pattern worked, he went to tell Mrs. Barbara Prior, principal, about it. After that, everything exploded."

The publicity was heavy on Ric that day and following days. "I was really surprised that I got all of the publicity, with radio, television and newspaper guys calling me," commented Ric.

So look on that next fill-in-the-little-bubble-with-a-#2-soft-lead-pencil test. Who knows? Maybe if you get finished with your first test early and look ahead on the other tests...Naw, you'd better not; you might score too high for your own good.



Working on an ITED test, senior Ric Gorgas tries to find the pattern. East's ITED's are compared to test scores of other students in Iowa.

East picks APPLES

East High has again advanced in the expanding world of computers. The computer department has acquired 12 new APPLE IIe computers. Along with the APPLEs, the department has four Commodore 64 computers.

"I love 'em," said computer teacher Merlin Mauk. "These computers are much better than the others." The APPLE IIe computers are much improved over the older APPLEs and Commodore 64s.

The new computers have their own green screen monitors. A monitor is like a television screen. The only difference between a computer monitor and a regular television screen is that a computer monitor can be more detailed, with computer graphics.

The new computers also have two disk drives. A disk drive uses magnetic disks about 5¼ inches in diameter. These disks store information that a person types into the computer. With disk drives, a person can put programs into the computer or save the program that was typed in.

Along with the new computers came a few printers. Printers are like electronic typewriters that print out information from the computer. The printer can print graphs, charts, tables and other graphics.

Mr. Mauk said that price and reliability were the reasons that East High purchased the APPLE IIe instead of another brand of computer. "They are also easier for the students to operate. They really don't need previous computer experience to run one," said Mr. Mauk.

Junior Scott Evans checks the printout of his computer program for errors. A few new printers came with the new APPLE IIe's.

New culture captured

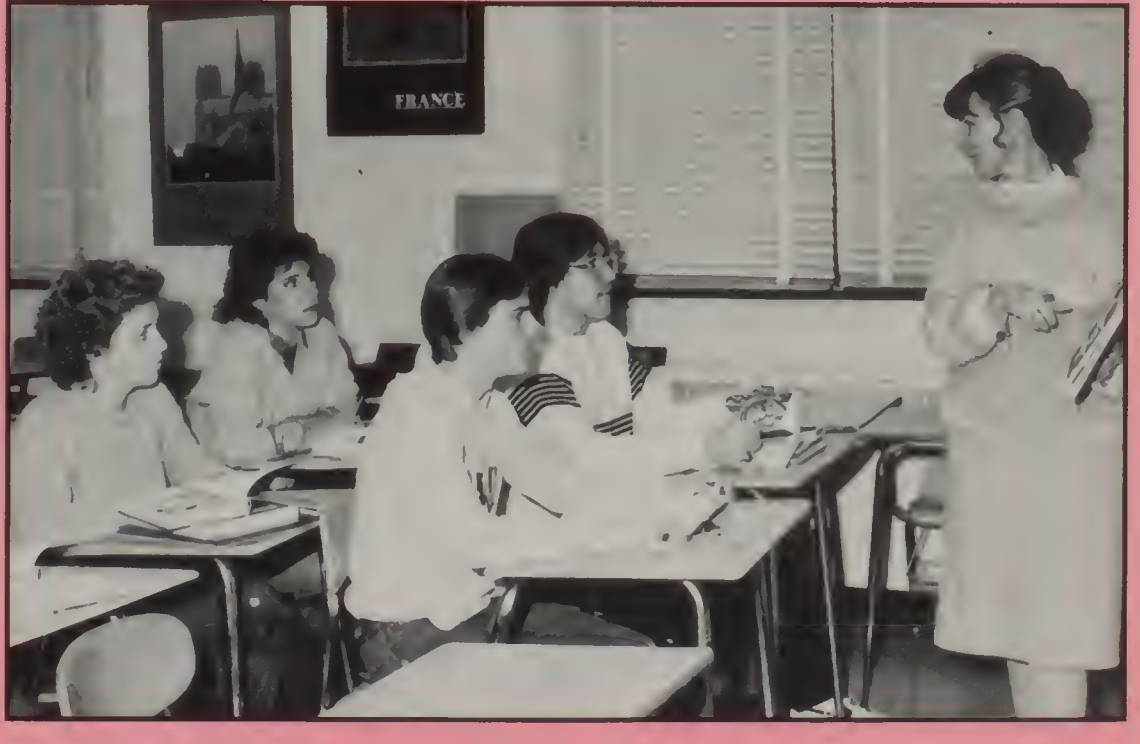
The foreign language classes started the year right with 300 students. The French classes received new textbooks this year. They also went to Roosevelt to watch a play presented by Roosevelt students.

Fourteen students were selling two-year calendar planners for their trip to Paris, France, and to Switzerland. They were also planning a ski trip to Fun Valley in Montezuma, Ia., with the foreign exchange students. The French students went to Omaha, Nebr., to eat in the French Cafe in the Old Market district.

Mrs. Carolyn Wolter, foreign language chairperson, liked the attitude of her students. She said that they came to class with high expectations. Junior Kelly Heathcote had this to say about the French class. "I enjoy learning about the French culture. Tasting the fine cuisine at the French Cafe was one of my favorite events."

By the end of the year the foreign language students learned a new culture and had fun doing so.

Will we be able to get all of our stuff in here? That was an important question for junior Reahnna Hilbrand, senior Randy Breese and juniors Brenda Justiniano and Kathy Hollingsworth.



"This is the culture we are going to study today." Mrs. Carolyn Wolter explains to senior Diane Van Rossum, junior Nichole Staats, seniors Scott Albers and Randy Breese.

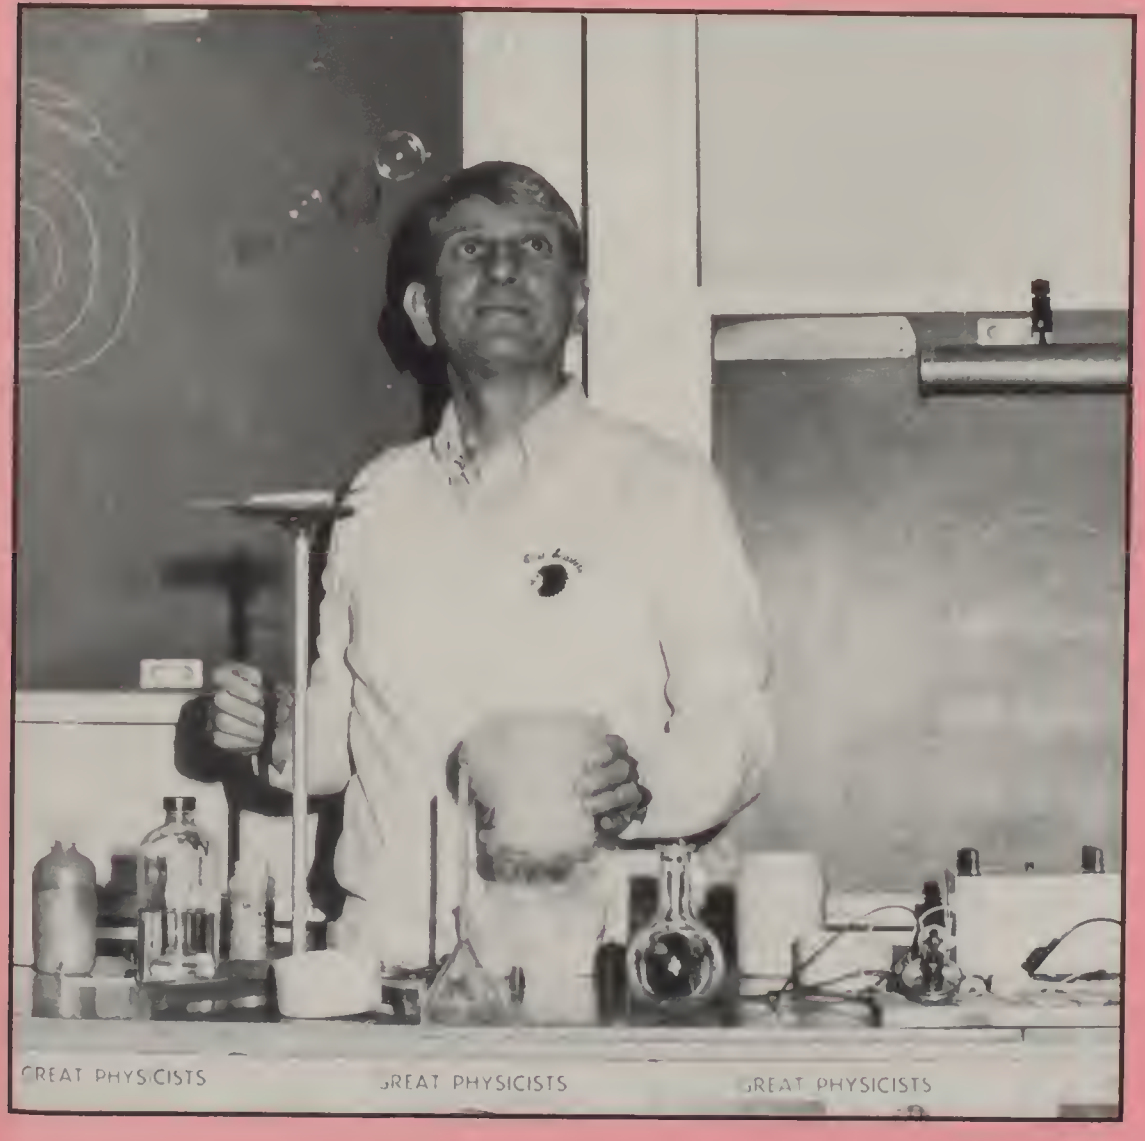
Adventures in science

Do you know why liquid nitrogen and ethyl mixed together make fumes? Mr. Ed Peterson and his science classes do. Mr. Peterson, the chairperson of the Science Department, gave this reason: "The low temperature of liquid nitrogen causes the alcohol vapors to condense as they escape." That sounds like a good explanation.

The East High Science Department welcomed three new teachers this year: Mrs. Susan Stroope, biology and physical science; Miss Sarah Klahn, ecology and earth science; Mr. Laurence Hutzel, chemistry. The ecology and earth science classes have received new textbooks this year.

Mr. Ray Patrilla, sponsor of the Science Club, took members of the club on a camping trip to the Ledges in Boone. Mr. Peterson's physics class took trips to Mercy Hospital, the Science Department at Grandview College, the Computer Center at Drake and Townsend Engineering.

The future is looking very bright for the science classes at East. The enrollment is expected to rise in all of the classes next year. A computer will be available for science classes to use. The planned computer area is room 116.



Mr. Ed Peterson demonstrates one of the many different things liquid nitrogen can do. His physics class observed many different experiments with this compound.

Shhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhh!!!

Working in the library was a lot harder than it seemed. Students had to learn to perform such tasks such as filing books in their proper order, checking books and periodicals out to students and other things to help the librarians.

Library Assistants usually worked during their study hall periods and received one-fourth credit. Working in the library gave the students the opportunity to learn about how the library is run, and they were able to see what a wide variety of books and periodicals are available in the library.

Freshman Ronda Erickson, who worked in the library, commented, "It's fun but it's work."

Mrs. June Kalsem, librarian, had this to say about the library assistants: "The library helpers really perform important services for the students and the library."

All in all, the student assistants' help was greatly appreciated by everyone.

Students turn to stars!

Building the sets, memorizing lines, designing costumes, creating publicity and performing were all a part of play production class activities.

Because of the increase in students interested in the class, and for the sake of convenience, the class was divided into two groups. Students who had not taken play production or drama before were put in play production. Students in Play Production 1 were in charge of set and costume design, posters, intercom announcements, makeup, sound and lighting, and many other tasks needed to make the play a success. Play Production 2 students were responsible for choosing and performing in the play.

Students in the class really enjoyed themselves and took pride in their work. Cassie Tully, senior, said, "Play Production class was very interesting. Verrry interesting." Chet Sewell, junior: "It was a good chance to get together with a bunch of talented people and produce plays that East High can be proud of."

Junior Class officers show school spirit

Spirit. That was the one thing the Junior Class had a lot of.

Students leading the Junior Class were Brian Carico, president; Tracie Moore, vice-president; Mike Pavon, treasurer; and Mindy Anderson, secretary.

These four students made East proud with the school spirit they demonstrated.

They held various fund-raisers. In the fall they sold poinsettias to help pay for a Quill ad for the seniors and next year's prom.

Vice-president Tracie Moore commented, "I feel that being Junior Class vice-president has been a good experience. I've enjoyed it; it's been a lot of fun."

Secretary Mindy Anderson said, "I had never done it before. I thought it would be fun to try something new, and it was. It was a blast!"

President Brian Carico said, "I enjoyed being president of the Junior Class; it was a lot of fun. I guess you could say there was never a dull moment."

Students go crazy at concerts

Attending concerts is a favorite activity among students. It is exciting to see favorite stars performing favorite songs in person.

Some of the popular concerts attended were Barry Manilow, Huey Lewis and the News, Elton John, Chicago, Bruce Springsteen and Hall and Oates. Some students ventured out of state to Kansas City to see the Jacksons or to Chicago to see Prince or Culture Club.

Tickets for concerts cost anywhere from $13 to $20, and they weren't always easy to get. Bruce Springsteen tickets were sold out only a short time after they went on sale. Some people even camped outside the box office the night before the box office opened.

Before the concerts, students spent time getting psyched up by listening to the bands' albums and memorizing the lyrics so they could sing along. Some even bought flowers to throw on stage or to present to the band backstage, if they were lucky enough to get backstage. Radio stations offered chances to win tickets, albums and opportunities to meet the band.

At the concert it was rare to see people sitting down. They were dancing, screaming and singing along. Concerts proved to be a good place to let loose and go crazy. Students attended concerts for a number of reasons.

Chet Sewell, junior: "I like concerts because it's fun to get together with a bunch of friends, get rowdy and listen to some great music."

Brenda Justiniano, junior: "Going to concerts is better than viewing MTV or listening to records because it sounds different and feels better to see them in person."

Brian Delk, junior: "I like going to concerts because it gives me an opportunity to see how the musician really feels about his music."

Teri Breton, junior: "I like all the craziness and seeing my favorite groups in person."

Junior makes unusual choice of companion

Most East High students have ordinary pets like dogs, cats and goldfish. Junior P.J. Perdue is truly an exception.

P.J. is the proud owner of three boa constrictors. He has had them for four years. The snakes are large; their lengths are six, seven and eight feet.

Why would someone want a boa constrictor for a pet? According to P.J., it's because they're different and don't make noise. He says it's like having a dog.

The reason P.J. started raising boa constrictors was that his dad prompted him to raise them for breeding purposes.

What do P.J.'s friends think of his boa constrictors? Weird!

Junior P.J. Perdue expertly handles two of his boa constrictors. P.J. has been raising them for four years and doesn't seem to mind when people think he's unusual.

Junior girls look forward to first formal dance

An event many junior girls have to look forward to was shopping for and buying their first formal. It was not only an exciting experience, but was also an expensive one.

Junior Stephanie Cochran commented, "It was so hard to choose one because there were so many different styles, and they were so expensive."

The price range was anywhere from $60 to $200 and even beyond. One junior, Shawn Boers, had a solution to this problem: "The ones I liked were too expensive. I wanted to be original, so I had my mom make my dress."

Many underclassmen, like freshman Debbie Bolton, looked forward to the day they got to buy a formal. "I'm really looking forward to it. It seems so exciting!", she said.

Juniors Dawn Mascaro and Laura Baker pick and choose as they shop for their first formal. Many junior girls have this opportunity sometime during their junior year.

Traffic proved to be a major problem for students as they left school. East 14th was usually busy and students often found it difficult to leave quickly. The photo above shows how confusing the after-school traffic could be. Many students felt that more exits and entrances should be built to allow easier access to and from the parking lots. Another suggestion to control the parking problem was to have separate parking areas for the Junior and Senior Classes, and not allowing the sophomores to drive.

Help! Where's the nearest exit?

"This is utterly ridiculous, totally maddening and a complete waste of time!" muttered one senior girl as she became helplessly involved in Traffic Jam U.S.A., commonly known as the north and back parking lots of Walker and Maple Streets after school. "Help! Where is the nearest exit?" she said.

Motorists driving up East 14th near Walker Street around 2:40 p.m. in past months raised their eyebrows in confusion. They knew that students were overjoyed to be out of class for the day, but overjoyed enough to run to their cars?

Students who parked in the north and back lots practiced Olympic-style sprinting to their cars each day to avoid the unavoidable traffic jam. Those who were lucky managed to get across East 14th in a fair amount of time — 5 or 10 minutes. However, those who were not so fortunate found that it took at least that long to get safely out of the parking lot.

The problem was not the students' driving habits. Lacking sufficient exits and entrances, the parking lots were jammed with cars, all trying to pull across East 14th during one of the busiest times of the day. Each lot had only one exit, and trying to get 100 or so cars out of that exit at one time did not result in cooperation. Students pulled out any which way in the hope of escaping. Brian James, senior, commented, "With East being the massively large high school that it is, we need more exits and entrances for easier access."

Pulling out of the back lot at East 14th and Maple was somewhat easier, for that intersection was blessed with stoplights. The lights gave the cars in the parking lot a fair chance to pull across East 14th. The early and lucky were the ones who were fortunate enough to park in this lot, for it was the first to fill up.

What was to be done about the traffic problem? Students offered these suggestions.

Linda Fisher, senior: "The best way to cut down on the traffic is to not let the underclassmen park in the parking lots."

Sami Carney, junior: "The best way to cut down on this major problem is to have an upperclassmen's parking lot and an underclassmen's parking lot."

Brian Delk, junior: "The traffic problem didn't really affect me. Most everyone was gone by the time I left. They should have more exits, though."

Heidi Watermiller, senior: "Let seniors out of school an hour early so they'll have plenty of time to leave before the juniors get out."

Steve Clark, senior: "They should build another parking lot and have designated parking areas for each class. They should allow only the juniors and seniors to drive to school, not the sophomores."

Four officers lead class act

Four very involved students, the Sophomore Class officers, found it very exciting to lead their class in activities. They held several fund-raisers throughout the year to purchase a yearbook ad and to raise extra funds for their class.

Dereck Lewis was in his first year as president. He found his job exciting and plans to run for the class-officer position in future years. He has participated in Student Government for two years. Basketball and cross country were two more of his activities.

Vice-president Beth Raymond said, "People should really get involved. High school goes by so fast." True to her word, Beth got involved. She was in cheerleading, Student Government and Building Climate Committee, and she was one of the sophomore representatives for Pep "E" Club.

Student Government, volleyball, basketball, track, softball, Pep "E" Club and Building Climate Committee were just a few of the activities Treasurer Angie Eyerly found time to participate in. She said, "I really enjoyed the responsibility of being treasurer."

Stephanie Ripley won the race for secretary. She participated in cheerleading, Chamber Singers, cross country and Pep "E" Club. She plans to run for the position of class officer in future years.

The Sophomore Class officers were very involved. They upheld their responsibilities and achieved great success. They felt it was very important to be involved because doing so made school go faster, and it allowed them to make several new friends.

President Dereck Lewis said, "Go for total involvement in school! You'll really be glad that you did."

Sophomore Jon Stephens watched a fellow classmate, Jon Eicher, being blown up in the video game Galaga and learns what not to do when it is his turn.

For a zappin' and hyper time, try video games

If one asked a sophomore how to get away from life and he said, "video games," you might look at him with sympathy. But most sophomores gave the same reason for getting away from life with video games. Sophs like Scott Moats said, "Video games are a challenge that does not cost too much. They are also fun."

Where was the common "video hangout?" Some sophs said they went to the nearest Quick Trip, while others said they liked to go to Nickelodeon or other close video arcades. "I went to Nickelodeon because it has a good variety of games," Randy Ballard said, as he thought of the next time he would be there.

Games like Pole Position and Centipede have both been around for awhile, and are among some of the all-time favorites. Also, the new-fangled laser-disc video games, like Dragons Layer and M.A.C.H. 3, were exceedingly popular. Pac-Man had fallen from the list of favorites of the sophomores.

By "zappin' away at meteorites" and being "blown away into hyper space," sophomores took a break from life on a Friday night or a Saturday afternoon, and practiced their skills for the near future.

Iowa or ISU? It's a toss-up

"We're number one!" the Hawkeye fans yelled. The Cyclone fans looked at them and said, "No way. We're number one!" Who was right? Faced with this question were the sophomores, and they had a big problem in agreeing who number one really was. Some answered with "Iowa"; the others said "Iowa State."

Brad Hiatt, an Iowa fan, said, "The Hawks are number one because they are dominant in sports." But what about the Cyclones, are they not dominate in sports? Ted Galvan thought they were "because they were an aggressive team and put up a good fight against anyone in any sport."

Okay. Both have good sports programs, but what about academics? Both Hawkeye and Cyclone fans agreed that the facilities were equal in both schools, but that academics are not always the reason a high school student chooses a certain college. Well, then. What is the reason?

Becky Bombela said it the best: "I want to go to ISU because all my friends and relatives went there." That's the reason. Students want to go to their favorite college because their friends and relatives went to that one particular college.

It seems to fit into the trend these days. Students like colleges like Iowa and ISU because they like the sports programs or the academic facilities or they knew someone who went to their favorite college. Whichever one it was, the students from the Class of '87 will find out for themselves which college, the Iowa Hawkeyes; or the Iowa State Cyclones, is really number one for their needs in the future.

In two years, they must make the decision.

Sophomores Kevin Shipley and Jim Dycus stare each other down while trying to prove who number one is, the Hawks or Cyclones.

Sophs grit teeth about braces

"Brace Face," "Railroad Tracks," and "Magnet Mouth" are some of the names sophomores with braces feared to be called. They dreaded the day they had to go into the orthodontist's chair and have the steel monsters clamped to their teeth for years at a time.

During those harrowing years, they had to go through pain in the mouth and tightening of the braces every few months while their teeth straightened to perfection.

Some of the sophomores have had braces for three, four or more years.

Danny Richardson, sophomore, said, "I hate them. I got them three years ago and they were supposed to come off already."

But braces are the old, painful, reliable way to get one's teeth straightened, according to Kevin Teske, sophomore, who said, "They're not too bad. They straighten my teeth like they are supposed to. They're painful though, and I'll be glad to get them off."

There are a few sophomores who don't even mind their braces, like sophomore Angie Eyerly, who has had them for two years. She said, "They don't bother me. I guess it's for the best; it's worth it."

Most of the sophomores with braces do not like the "bear traps" that are on their teeth. But there are some sophomores that think they are worth it. So you sophomores who hate your braces, think about that when you see your teeth for the first time in years. Your pearly whites will be as straight as an arrow. Wasn't it all worth it?

Lockers spruced up by sophs

Pictures of centerfolds, Garfield and rock stars could be found on some sophomores' lockers around the school. Locker decorations, the bright, new things that add life to the otherwise gray steel boxes that hold one's coat and books, were liked by most sophomores.

Most of the sophomores thought such decorations added that little something to the atmosphere in the halls.

Sophomore Jim Nelson said, "Some lockers add a little life to the dreary halls."

John Rounds, sophomore, added, "They overcome the messiness of the books."

Some of the more carefree sophomores thought that anything could be put into the lockers. "I think they should put what they want to put in there," Shauntal Baker, sophomore, asserted.

Of course, there are some who don't care either way about the decorations. Chip Rose, sophomore, said, "It's something for the custodians to clean up."

There are many views about locker decorations. Some consider them to be atmosphere boosters, and some think one can put anything possible in the lockers. Then some of the sophomores don't care either way about locker decorations.

Of course, there are always the independent views, like those of John Rivas, sophomore, who said, "I think everyone should be able to have a picture of a tan '71 Chevy in his locker." Jim Davis, sophomore, added, "Everybody has torn mine down!"

Sophomore Biff Moore shows off his attractively decorated locker. His locker is one of the many lockers around school with pictures, cartoons and various hang-ups in them.

Sophs enjoy their experiences in 1984-5

If someone came up to you and asked you if you knew what journalism, printing, television and photography have in common, what would be your response? Right! They are all part of the Communications Media course taken by sophs. Another answer is that they are all very important in the production of East High Publications. Both of these answers would be acceptable. Each section is 4½ weeks long in the C.M. course.

Photography is one of the sections; it is a very brief "exposure." In the 4½ week section, sophs shoot a 12-exposure roll of film, develop it, make a proof sheet and then make an enlargement, sometimes more. "I like the way they had students who had already taken the course help us with the development of film," said Scott Kerns.

The journalism section consisted of writing copy, headlines and captions, copy reading, proofreading and layouts. "It was challenging and it gave us a lot of opportunity to learn," said Steve Heckinger.

Transferring the idea in one's head to the final product was one of the many tasks in the printing section. One of the projects is a notebook which the students complete. "Communications Media was fun because it gave me experience in all fields of communication," said Chris Silver.

Radio and Television Production is just that. The students are actually on TV and radio. The students write, produce and star in their own commercials made up for their own products.

The Communications Media course is offered only to sophomores.

Any student may take specific courses in the four areas during his junior and senior years, because the C.M. course is not a prerequisite.

Sophs size up super fashions

GQ (Gentlemen's Quarterly) are the two most popular letters in the sophomore's world of magazines. When a girl opens a GQ magazine she opens a fantasy world full of well-dressed men.

It puts the girl in the driver's seat to say anything she would not say to a cute boy standing right beside her.

"It has a lot of good ideas when a person is looking to buy clothes for guys,' commented Debbie Woodard, sophomore. GQ is not the only magazine sophs go for. If there were guys on the cover of a magazine, sophomore girls were likely to purchase it. Other magazines sophs enjoyed were Teen, Tiger Beat, Seventeen and dozens more! If a sophomore had a few extra dollars left from her lunch money, she might have been found at a local grocery store purchasing one, maybe two!

Sports Illustrated is one magazine sophomores like, especially the guys, because the main topic is sports. Coverage includes spring sports like baseball and many different kinds of winter sports, like hockey and football.

849 freshmen led by four

To take charge and to lead was the responsibility of the four freshman students chosen by their classmates to lead the class of 1988.

Jeff Stickel was chosen by the 849-member Freshman Class to lead their class and represent them as president of the Class of 1988.

Chosen to serve as vice-president was Matt Kristufek. He had to be as well informed as the president on all matters concerning the masses of freshmen, so that if he had to, he could make a decision for the benefit of the Class of '88.

Keeping track of the things that needed to be written down that would benefit the class of 1988 so that these leaders might be elected next year and lead once again — that was the job of Dusty Sheets, freshman class secretary.

Shawn Adair was elected treasurer. Shawn had to keep a close eye on what the Class of 1988 could do.

These four outstanding students demonstrated their leadership capabilities in showing that they could fit right into EHS.

FRESHMAN CLASS OFFICERS: Dusty Sheets (Secretary), Shawn Adair (treasurer), Matt Kristufek (Vice-president), Jeff Stickel (President).

Freshmen crowd into hallways

Trying to make it to class on time was the biggest problem of the year for freshmen. It seemed as if the freshmen had taken over the halls. Some freshmen were asked, "What was the most trouble you had with the halls being crowded?"

Bob Davidson: "I didn't think the halls were crowded."

Chris Dawson: "It was hard to get to class on time."

Tim Gobb: "It took a long time to get through the lunch line."

Robert Cason: "I hope it's not as hard to get through the halls next year."

Jeremy Cobb: "Maybe the school should install traffic lights."

Then Mr. John Rudisill, a ninth grade science teacher, was asked if he had any problems with such a large freshman class. His reply was that there are only so many slots to be filled and once this happens it prevents some students from taking science class. He also said, "I wish that more students could take the earth science class."

Freshmen Mike Felton and Randella Brown search for the odd tile in the front lobby. This tile was placed there on purpose by designers.

Odd tile causes massive confusion among curiosity-filled Frosh Class

To find the odd tile in the front lobby.

Many freshmen set out to accomplish this goal every year, but still others have never heard about it before. Even after finding the tile, which does not seem to fit into the pattern of the other tiles, few students have any clues as to why this unusual tile was cemented into East High School's history.

Tyler Poston, freshman, said, "There was a miscalculation of the square tiles and space for the tiles."

Jimmy Carter, freshman, thought it was "to give somebody something to look for."

Tammy McGilvra, freshman, said, "Somebody wanted to be creative."

Kris Tomlinson, freshman, agreed with Tammy, saying, "to be unique" was the key to the solving of this puzzle.

Tom Rupprecht, freshman, commented, "They must have run out of tiles."

These seem to be good, logical answers, but it was not creativity, uniqueness or even miscalculations that brought this tile to East.

East High, modeled after the traditional Greek buildings, also used a Greek belief, which is behind the placing of this tile in the front lobby.

Why would a mistake be allowed in the front of the school where students would trod for hundreds of years? It is because the Greeks had an architectual tradition: no building can be perfect, but must contain a minor flaw to prove, once again, that nothing is perfect.

Being of Greek architecture, East is a prime candidate for the legacy the Greeks left behind, dating back to its beautiful buildings, like the Parthenon, that now lie in ruins. These special building ideas, along with our own memorable moments, have helped East build a legacy of its own.

Although some think that the mis placed tile is a dumb mistake made by laborers, Scarlets know it is an important part of a legacy we have built and will continue to build through the years.

This is only one story, among the many that are told about East High School, and it is timeless. This story of the unique tile is one Scarlets may share with their children as well as their grandchildren. It is not like a quick-changing fad, but something they can see for themselves for as long as this school stands, which will be "forever," in our minds.

Basketball hoop mystifies frosh

"Why do you guys have a basketball hoop on the side of your building?" Have you ever heard that from people who go to other schools? You probably began to doubt your intelligence when you couldn't answer that question about your own school. The truth is that few people do know the reason for this basketball hoop, which still remains among the many mysteries of East High.

Located along the south wing, facing the freeway, is a basketball hoop 40 feet above the school grounds. The answer to this mystery is relatively simple, and, mainly through using common sense, one would understand why this hoop was put there.

Many jokingly say it is used for strengthening basketball team members' arms, while others think it is to symbolize the many marks we have left in athletics.

The main reason for putting the hoop there is to signify that this area is used for physical education purposes. This is an idea architects recommend for various types of buildings, including schools.

Who would have thought the answer would be that simple? This just proves that common sense can solve many mysteries of life.

Facing the freeway, along the south wing, this basketball hoop, which is 40 feet high, hangs to symbolize the Physical Education Department.

Weird passes, humiliation hit student body

"It's degrading!" Why can't you give me a regular pass?" These were commonly heard comments from students about some of the "weird" passes they received from their teachers.

To be caught carrying one of these passes was very humiliating. The passes either had pictures of toilets on them or were very large in size, thus making it hard to stuff them into one's pocket.

To save class time and to be different were the main reasons for the existence of such weird passes.

Many students, wanting to save themselves from humiliation, pleaded for the return of the plain, pink passes.

Chris Burt, an embarrased freshman, very sneakily carries a weird pass designed by Mr. John Lethcoe just for use in this picture—this particular pass isn't used by any teacher.

Frosh set record enrollment mark

To have the largest Freshman Class in the school's history, East proved it was the ultimate choice among area students. Last year, the Freshman Class was considered enormous, with 750 students. This year, the record enrollment was 849 freshman. With a Freshman Class of this size, the probabilities of great achievements were very high.

Many adjustments and revisions were made to accomodate the large Freshman Class. A number of classrooms were added, and the faculty was increased. The academic and athletic programs were greatly enhanced by the larger turnouts.

The majority of the Freshman Class were proud to be a part of the record-setting enrollment. Following were comments made by students of the Freshman Class.

Nikki La Munyon: "The more of us, the merrier."

Tracy Stewart: "The upperclassmen have been a real help to us, and we are respected."

The other grades had mixed feelings concerning the large freshman enrollment. Some of their comments regarding the Freshman Class follow.

Rod Sanders, senior: "At times it annoyed me, but I gradually learned to cope with the freshmen."

Perry Kilby, junior: "I think they are great people, and everyone should own one."

Tammy Doland, sophomore: "They are all too small."

The obstacles to overcome in having enrolled a class of this size were very minimal and easily overcome. Above all, the record-setting Freshman Class was a great asset to East's image.

FROSH

Who controls the lunch line?

Finally, lunch time came! You were standing in line, all ready to fill your deepest desires in dining, and the nine tallest, fattest, ugliest and meanest seniors stepped right in front of you. What could you do?

This was a very common problem at East High. Many seniors felt that they were the superior class, and maybe they were, but this did not mean they deserved to eat first. Many lowerclassman and staff felt that this was unfair and needed to be stopped.

Freshman Tim Osborn said, "Every day they cut, and I was tired of it."

There was really not a thing any of us could do about this problem, but some took it in stride, like freshman Amy Forbes, who said, "My friends and I were scared of the seniors, so we kept quiet."

Sometimes it was quite funny to see the smallest of the freshmen trying to stand up to their bigger peers.

The majority of the Freshman Class submitted to this display of senior superiority without too much objection. Some of them were motivated by fear. Freshman Angie Silver said, "It stinks, but I wouldn't dare say anything to the seniors!" A few were looking ahead to their senior year, when they could do some rearranging in the lunch line themselves. Freshman Christy Rogerson gave this prediction: "I don't think it's fair, but I'll probably do it when I'm a senior, too!"

To upperclassmen, cutting in line was not really a chance to bully frightened freshmen, but merely the opportunity to see how it felt to see a space magically appear in line at their command.

This is a tradition at East that will never stop. No matter how much protesting takes place, the lowerclass men's rights will be taken advantage of. Most freshmen understood this, simply because they knew they were the lowerclassmen. When they advance to the higher grade levels, they will carry on this tradition.

The freshmen felt angered this year, but not too far down the road, their time of dominance will come, and they will prevail.

Upper-classmen show who's really boss

"Elevator tickets? What are elevator tickets?" "East has elevators; I'll buy four tickets!"

In the first few weeks of school, elevator tickets were in great demand. Of course, East has no elevators; nevertheless, many freshmen still tried to find the few ticket holders.

Selling elevator tickets was just one of the many pranks seniors played on freshmen. Senior Pat Wilson said, "It's a learning experience for the freshmen, and it teaches them respect for their elders."

Many students felt that if the pranks and tricks were kept in perspective, they were fine and a lot of fun.

Senior Bob Nair is being very helpful by showing freshman Bert Reid one of the many imaginary elevators in operation at East. Selling elevator tickets was one of the many senior pranks.

Luthens named new D.M. School Board President

This year the new Des Moines Public School Board of Directors President is a former East High graduate. Mrs. Sue Luthens is the one who represents not only East, but all the schools in the Des Moines School system.

Being faithful to one's old alma mater can be difficult when one must represent all schools. Mrs. Luthens has played an active part in the activities here at East for many years. Mrs. Luthens becomes a true Scarlet one day a year, and that's during Homecoming Week. She always has an encouraging speech for the football team. Thank you, Mrs. Luthens, for showing us that you are a true Scarlet inside and out!

Mrs. Sue Luthens gives one of her brilliant smiles to the student body at the Homecoming Assembly. Mrs. Luthens was chosen as the Des Moines Public School Board of Directors president this year.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS. SEATED: Mr. James Cunningham (Secretary), Mr. Jonathan Wilson (Vice-President), Mrs. Sue Luthens (President), Dr. William Anderson (Superintendent). STANDING: Mrs. Barbara Buck, Mrs. Gloria Hoffman, Mr. William Keck, Mrs. Karen Williams, Mrs. Betty Grundberg. Mrs. Buck was elected in November, 1984.

Are they what they drive?

The things a person owns reflect the type of personality he has. Well, what about teachers and their cars?

Walking through the teachers parking lot, one could see a variety of cars, one to match each teacher's different personalities. What kind of car did your favorite teacher drive? If you tried to analyze the kind of car he drove, would you do a very good job at it?

First of all, you had to decide the year of the car. Were they old-fashioned or modern? How about the model of the car they have? Could you guess right? How about Mrs. Daria Huang, teacher of mathematics and Computer Literacy? She's a modern and neat type of person and her new Toyota shows it. Mr. Dennis Forker, English teacher, is a casul type of person and even his Chevy Nova shows that, too. Mr. Gerald Ernst, Business Education, said "My car may not be new, but it runs and it's paid for."

Mr. Dennis Forker, English Teacher, and Mrs. Daria Huang, mathematics teacher, get ready to leave after school. What kind of persons do you think they are by the cars they drive?

Vice-President George Bush and Governor Terry Branstad visit East on a day that will live on forever in everyone's mind, especially Principal Barbara Prior's.

Meetings keep Prior occupied

Sitting behind a desk all day six days a week is not the way to describe Principal Barbara Prior's duties. She was constantly busy attending meetings, holding conferences and participating in activities to help promote the image of East.

One of the honors that East had this year was a visit from Vice-President George Bush Oct. 22. Prior said that his visit gave students a learning experience about the importance of security operations to a political figure. She also said that the students' behavior was excellent and helped to promote the school's image.

A lot of improvements were also made to accomodate the large enrollment. New classrooms were added, along with new faculty members. Mrs. Prior thought that the student body adjusted well to the huge enrollment of 2,300, which gave even more students a chance to be East High graduates.

The student body deeply appreciated Mrs. Prior's efforts in persuading the Des Moines School Board of Directors to return open campus during the lunch period. She said, "Young adults need to be trusted."

This was Mrs. Prior's fourth year as East's principal.

Dedicated helpers aid East

Behind every good show, business and organization are people that keep it running smoothly. Schools are no exception. The counselors, advisors and other office workers helped to keep East a pleasant place to learn. They gave guidance to anyone and kept order in the school.

Mrs. Norma Baronasky, nurse, and Mrs. Sherry Fuhlrodt, her assistant, helped to keep the student body healthy so that they were able to learn.

Mrs. Fuhlrodt said, "I enjoy working at East. The students are great, and I am looking forward to my second year."

The cafeteria ladies prepared nutritious food for students and faculty to keep up their strength to last through the rest of the day, thus promoting good health.

Mrs. Maxine Sinnard, cafeteria manager, said, "I enjoy working here at East and the students are great."

Not to be left out were the day and night custodians. They cleaned the halls and classrooms so that East had a clean, healthy environment.

All of these wonderful people gave their all to make the 1984-5 school year run smoothly.

The Yellow Rose

Life is a rose of yellow,

The flower of beauty,

The flower of sorrow,

It works in many ways.

Each day is a new day,

Bloom or wilt—life must go on.

When the sorrow comes out,

The beauty is forgotten,

Life is in the roots.

But you must remember,

never to forget, that up on that stem—is the happiness

that of the Yellow Rose .....

Nanette was in all of our lives, but we musn't forget the good times—keep them close to the heart. She was a beautiful person; may her afterlife be enjoying. God bless her—and you as well.

—Jeff Stickel

NANETTE AI CHRISTENSEN

Jan. 23, 1970—Dec. 1, 1984

Images of life come and go, but none as precious as the life of a young adult. Nanette Ai Christensen was one of these precious young adults. She was a fun-loving, caring person with a beautiful singing voice and a happy giggle that made everyone laugh, even if that person was in the bluest of moods. She also had the unselfish quality of caring for others before herself, and that's why her friends and family loved her so much.

She was ambitious and loved to get involved in school; Pep "E" Club, Scarlet Choir and Powder Puff football were just a few.

Her friends and family all love and miss her dearly, and each one has mourned her death with all his heart and each one cares for her very much, although she is gone.

Mary-Ann Williams, freshman, expresed her feelings about Nanette: "Nana was like a sister to me, and I was hurt she was gone and in such a way.

Raquel Larson, freshman, also expressed herself. "Nanette was the best friend anyone could ever have. I think—wherever she went, she spread a little happiness. She was always thoughtful of others and cared about all her friends and family. Nanette is what I would call a very special girl; she had a smile for everyone and a helping hand for those in need."

PRIDE

It's a feeling of accomplishment. Accomplishment in learning, in making friends and in knowing the years spent at East High have been the very best.

PRIDE

It demands the hard work and support of everyone. This total commitment has carried East to the pinnacle. And it is this same commitment that will keep East High No. 1.

PRIDE

Iowa Power and Iowa Gas also share this.

PRIDE

in the athletes.

PRIDE

in the student body.

PRIDE

in the community, and

PRIDE

in our continuing alliance with East.

The students of East are the leaders of tomorrow. Leaders who will someday serve in government, business and the community. As the journey into the future becomes reality, Iowa Power and Iowa Gas will also be there . . . with people serving you.

Think Positive
If you think you are beaten, you are,
If you think you dare not, you don't
Success begins with your own will
It's all in your state of mind
Life's battles are not always won by those who are stronger or faster
Sooner or later the people who win
Are the people who think they can.

Good Luck

The 1984-85 East High Senior Steppers would like to dedicate this page to each other and the times we've shared through the years.

Together we have grown from strangers as freshmen to college bound seniors. During these years, we have watched each other grow as we shared our determination to do our best, along with the disappointments and our victories.

These memories have provided us with the bond that will keep us special friends forever. Although our time at East High has come to an end, the friendships made here will never be forgotten.

To all the future classes of E.H.S.!

Renee Smith

In the past 80 years, man has learned more about flight than in all previous recorded history.

Man's pioneer flights were made in balloons. Then, more than 100 years after those first flights, Orville and Wilbur Wright made the first successful flight in a heavier-than-air mechanically propelled airplane at Kitty Hawk, North Carolina, on December 17, 1903. In the years that followed, we progressed from piston-drivin to jet-propelled aircraft. . . from small rockets to satellites, to space vehicles that carry men to the moon and return them safely. And we've only seen the beginning. Tomorrow will bring even more sophisticated aircraft and the challenge of space shuttle flights. Air Force Junior ROTC can teach you more about man's heritage of flight and the future facing us. Our Aerospace Science program will help you explore civilian, industrial and military aspects of aerospace and will help you become a leader—self-reliant and self-disciplined.

AIR FORCE
JUNIOR ROTC

To be eligible to enroll, you must be a U.S. citizen, physically fit and at least 14 years of age.

Talk with your friends, and your parents. IF INTERESTED, contact your counselor, Lt/Col Lillie, or Chief Weiss.

The mover people talk about. Nicely.

Talk about service! As one of the largest movers, Wheaton is large enough to do the job with modern, fully-equipped vans expert packing . . . experienced drivers. Yet we're small enough to do it right. Our customers are our best advertisements. Talk with someone who has moved with Wheaton.

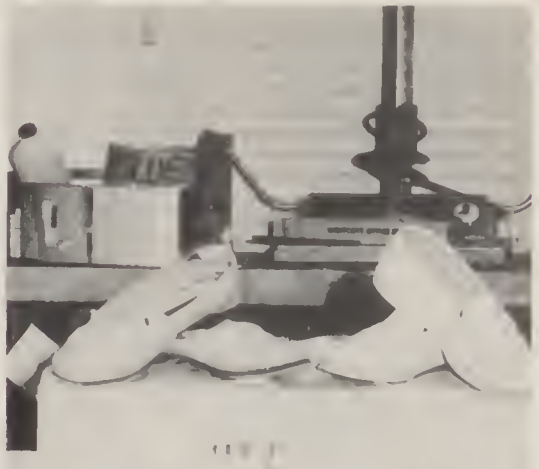
The long-awaited 1985 cap, tassel and diploma.

We, the Senior Quill Staff members, challenge next year's Senior Class to fill our shoes.



Curtain Call! You seniors walked across the stage at your long-awaited graduation for a final bow. The stage was truly a bridge to the outside world. And juniors, you prepared for the white-hot spotlight recently vacated by the Class of '85. Sophomores, you graduated to upperclassmen, and you freshmen were happy to have survived the trials of a freshmen year.

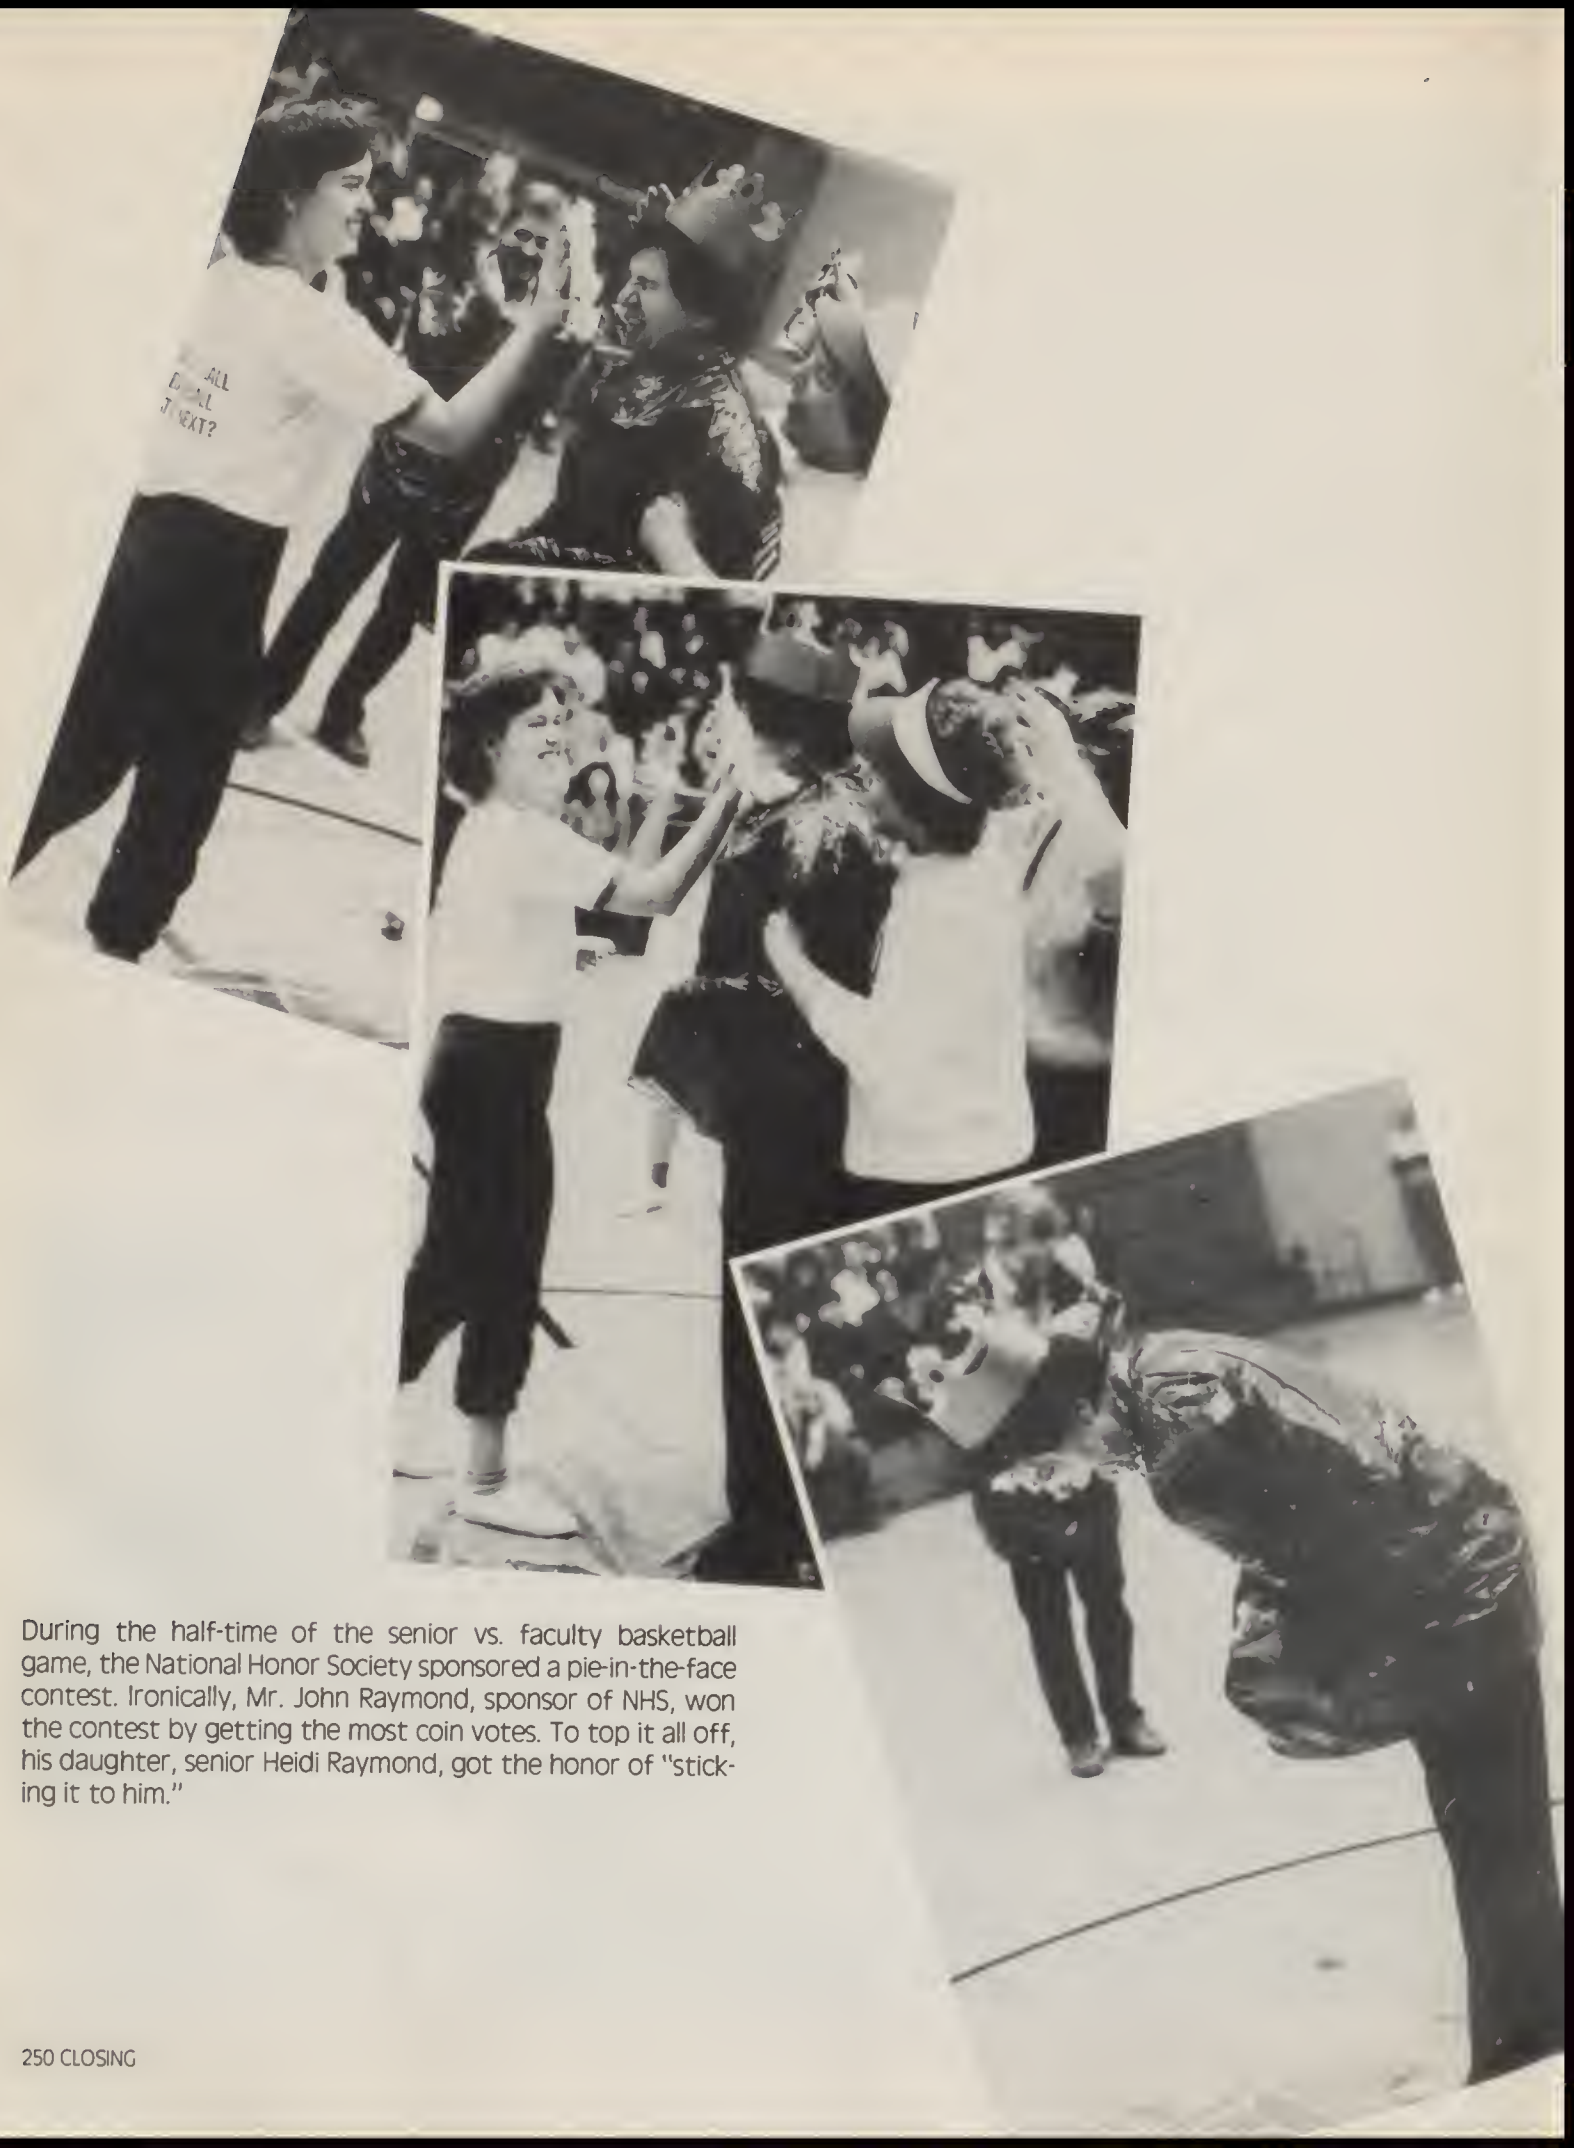
Excitement was in the air, for you, as seniors, realized that the end of a 13-year life-style had come to a close, and you merged with the largest, most active alumni association around. You couldn't help feeling the anticipation and wonder about the "real" world that was only a few short steps away. For some it was the promise of college, and for others it was the opportunities in the work force that waited for them after graduation.

Those who did not graduate were left to carry on the traditions of pride, promise and poise that have cast strong undertones to the East Side Story in years past.

Tricia Collins, sophomore, fills out her scheduling sheet for next year.

Signing the yearbook is a year-end tradition.

Curtain Call



During the half-time of the senior vs. faculty basketball game, the National Honor Society sponsored a pie-in-the-face contest. Ironically, Mr. John Raymond, sponsor of NHS, won the contest by getting the most coin votes. To top it all off, his daughter, senior Heidi Raymond, got the honor of "sticking it to him."
